Predict Fall Of Toulon

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ROME, Aug. 19.—American forces broke into the outer suburbs of the great French naval base of Toulon today and a front dispatch predicted its fall this week-end. While American tanks and infantry drove to within five miles or less of Toulon in an assault from the northeast, another Allied column outflanked the port from the north and threatened it with encirclement in a lunge that carried to within perhaps 25 miles of Marseilles, France's largest port and second largest city, against feeble resistance.

British United Press War Correspondent Reynolds Packard, in a dispatch dated "Seven Miles from Toulon," said Allied forces stalling north of La Roquebrussanne, 14 miles north of Toulon, toward Marseilles were having difficulty in maintaining contact with the fleeing Germans.

STIFFER RESISTANCE
Stiffer resistance was being encountered in the frontal assault on the naval stronghold, as the Germans unleashed their heavy artillery and rushed up ragamuffin reinforcements from three badly-battered divisions for a final stand. They were reported blowing up all bridges leading into the city.

"Looking down from mountain heights on the silhouette of Toulon in today's haze of smoke and powder, and seeing French and American infantry supported by tanks, closing in, I believe Toulon is likely to fall this week-end regardless of the stand the Germans may make," Packard said.

Sweeping on ahead of the advancing ground forces, medium bombers sank a destroyer and a submarine and scored destructive hits on the 26,500-ton battleship Strasbourg and a cruiser of the 7600-ton La Galissoniere class in Toulon harbor yesterday.

Former Health Organizer Dies

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Mrs. Christina Elizabeth Smith Forbes, 75, veteran of the Yukon gold rush and organizer of the public health department of Alberta, died in hospital here yesterday.

A nurse before her marriage to Rev. Alexander Forbes, she went to Canada, Sask., on completing her training here, and there was in charge of the Hugh Waddell hospital.

When gold was discovered in the Yukon, in 1896, Mrs. Forbes led a band of nurses to Dawson City where she served as matron of the Good Samaritan hospital.

Later she was retained by the Alberta government to organize and direct the public health department. She married and came to Toronto in 1925.

On Hospital Staff Orders Board To Reinstall City Doctor

CALGARY, Aug. 19.—(CP)—City hospital board must not refuse physicians the right to act on the staffs of hospitals unless a good reason is given, charges substantiated, and the physician concerned is given a fair hearing. Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd held in an important judgment handed down in supreme court at Calgary, Thursday.

As a result, his lordship ordered the Edmonton hospital board to reinstate Dr. Jacob Cornelius Andersen of that city on the staff of the Royal Alexandra Hospital, Edmonton. He directed that the refusal of the board to allow Dr. Andersen to act on the staff was null and void.

BARRED AT HOSPITAL
According to the judgment, Dr. Andersen was refused the right to look after his patients in the Royal Alexandra Hospital because allegedly he had commented upon the efficiency of the German army.

"It seems that the plaintiff Dr. Andersen returned from Europe and, having seen the German army enter Austria with ruthless power, talked about it," His Lordship stated.

Apparently, however, he had only given his impression of the German army as he had seen it at that time and there was no substantiation of the allegation that he had said the British army would not have a chance against the German army.

His Lordship pointed out that there was also no substantiation of charges that Dr. Andersen had said anything derogatory of Britain in the present war.

Nevertheless, His Lordship said, the Royal Alexandra hospital staff refused to allow him to act on the hospital staff and the Edmonton Hospital Board confirmed the refusal.

Neil D. Maclean, K.C., acted for Dr. Andersen, and Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., for the Edmonton Hospital Board.

Export Bans on Turkey Lifted

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The United States has removed export bans imposed on Turkey and is facilitating the shipment of civilian goods on a cash basis to the neutral which broke relations with Germany two weeks ago.

It was also learned today that shipment of military items under lend-lease is expected to be resumed shortly, depending on the Allied supply situation as a result of the French campaign.

The majority of lend-lease sent to Turkey is of British origin, but the decision to start shipments is up to the combined munitions assignment board.

Nazis May Quit France

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(CP)—A Berlin broadcast quoted a German war ministry official statement today as saying "we must be prepared for a German withdrawal from France."

"We must expect the loss of places with world famous names," the statement said with a scarcely-veiled reference to Paris.

The broadcast, by the German agency Transocean, was recorded by the Ministry of Information.

The same agency quoted a military spokesman in Berlin as saying: "No fresh German divisions can be sent to France. The troops in battle have been warned of this and have been ordered to fight to the last man."

Crowds Greet Former Mayor At Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—Camille Houde returned last night to the city which in former years had witnessed his greatest triumphs and his darkest moments. He came back to his native Montreal four years after his internment for urging citizens not to participate in national registration; and five years after he had welcomed the King and Queen to the metropolis in one of his most brilliant social functions during eight years as mayor.

The concourse of Central Station was jammed with spectators, mingling with outgoing passengers to catch a glimpse of the man who had served four two-year terms as mayor of Montreal and who, until the recent Quebec elections, had remained throughout internment technically the representative of Montreal St. Mary riding in the provincial legislature.

RELEASED THIS WEEK
The former mayor had boarded the train at St. Hyacinthe, Que., after being met at Sherbrooke, Que., the day before by his wife and three children.

Two Escaped Nazi Prisoners-of-War Captured in B.C.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Aug. 19.—(CP)—Two German prisoners of war who escaped from a lumber camp at Brule, Alta., north of Edmonton, were captured here yesterday by military police.

The men, Konrad Bippa, 24, and Seppmann Heins, 25, later were taken in charge by Royal Canadian Mounted Police for return to Alberta.

Bippa was taken on Columbia street in downtown New Westminster late Friday afternoon. Heins was captured near the Queen Elizabeth school in the residential section several hours later, when he attempted to elude officers by hiding in a ditch.

Questioned, Bippa gave his nationality as Italian. On his person was found $1.00 in Canadian money, a German coin and an extra pair of pants.

It was announced last night. Capt. Wilkinson has been serving in Canada since early in 1943 after recovering from wounds sustained at the time of Camp Borden, Ont.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Fleets of Allied bombers and fighters thundered across the Channel today in the wake of nearly 1,000 RAF and Dominion night bombers which hammered the Germans through France, Belgium and their country, including Berlin.

Some of the early daylight forces were headed in the direction of Paris, indicating an intensification of the aerial support of ground troops racing toward the French capital.

The other Allied planes apparently took up the systematic campaign against German escape routes and transportation facilities, which were given the heaviest pounding of the French campaign yesterday.

BLAST 2,000 VEHICLES
Supreme headquarters announced that more than 3,000 German motor vehicles were destroyed or damaged by Allied planes, which flew 5,000 offensive sorties, in the "greatest tactical air force operation since El Alamein."

About 2,000 of the enemy vehicles were destroyed.

MOSCOW, Aug. 19.—Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian army, pouring across the Vistula river on a 75-mile front, by-passed the German stronghold of Radom in a lightning advance up the west bank to within 45 to 50 miles south of Warsaw today.

The new drive set the stage for a co-ordinated two-way assault on the Polish capital from the south and east within perhaps the next few days. Scores of towns and villages were by-passed by Konev's armored columns.

A German communiqué said the Radomian element of a broad front offensive against Warsaw with support of tanks and battle clouds, but gained only slight success because of our stubborn resistance and immediate counter-attacks.

Further north, Soviet guns stepped up their thunderous barrage across the Nemunas river border of East Prussia, but there was no word that Gen. Ivan D. Hernalshovsky's troops and tanks had yet forced the narrow, shallow stream for the first Allied invasion of Germany's homeland in this war.

By last evening, a front dispatch said, Soviet infantry, entrenching

For $50,000 Syndicate Buys Dominion Block On 100th Street

Sales of downtown real estate continue buoyant and the latest large transaction, the purchase of the Dominion Building, 1000 100 street, being completed on Friday. It was learned Saturday morning. This is the 18th major sale of downtown property made since the beginning of this year.

The Dominion Building, a four-story brick structure owned by the Great Dominion Land Co., has been purchased by an Edmonton syndicate for a reported $50,000. It is not the intention of the purchasers to disturb the present tenants, it was stated.

The property, which is assessed for taxation purposes at $37,000, has a 541 feet frontage and a depth of 120.51 feet. It is occupied at present by the Hamly Press Ltd., on the ground floor and basement, and the upper storeys are rented as offices and apartments.

BEAT LAST YEAR
Sales through the civic land department since Jan. 1, 1944, are running well ahead of the record year of 1943, according to reports filed with the city commissioners by John Paterson, superintendent of the department. Sales throughout August were extremely heavy, averaging more than four transactions daily, while enquiries for property for prospective home-builders continue to increase.

WITH BRITISH 2nd ARMY IN PURSUIT OF THE GERMAN ARMY, Aug. 19.—(BUP)—The flight of the German Seventh army became a mad scramble for life today and the belief is growing that the beaten enemy is really fleeing for the German border, where the final and decisive battle of the war will be fought. Demoralization in the enemy ranks is increasing by the hour as the German commanders inside and outside the Normandy pocket flounder desperately with no clear idea of where to find safety.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Aug. 19.—The battle of northern France degenerated into bloody slaughter today as Allied planes, tanks and infantrymen pursued and annihilated the fleeing remnants of Germany's crack 7th Army and armored columns penetrated the suburbs of Paris. The liberation of the old French capital and the final destruction of the Nazi armies of northern France appeared imminent, and field dispatches said all semblance of organized resistance had vanished everywhere on the 135-mile front from Paris to the channel coast.

German tanks and trucks were jammed bumper to bumper along the highways leading northeastward to the Seine, under relentless attack by swarms of RAF, Dominion and Allied fighter-bombers that bombed and strafed the fleeing enemy columns into blazing ruins.

Bright Future For Northwest Air Route Seen

By C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(CP)—President Roosevelt yesterday forecast a useful, busy future for the air route through northwest Canada and Alaska to Siberia and Europe, and said he expected no difficulty in making necessary arrangements with Canada.

At his first press conference since his return from the Pacific the President was asked to comment on the recent agreement by which Canada pays the United States some $76,000,000 for construction and improvements on airports in the Dominion.

UNAWARE OF DETAILS

Mr. Roosevelt said he was not familiar with details but commented that his recent visit to the Aleutians and his journey down the west coast through the inside passage had impressed him with the value of the northwest air route.

The chain of airports could not have been developed commercially but they had served a vital purpose as a route for ferrying planes to Russia and for other war uses.

Now that the route had proved so efficient there was the possibility that it would be of great commercial value, explaining that it would be necessary for Americans to circle far out to sea and back to Alaska if they had to avoid flying over Canada.

WOULD BE SILLY

That, the President said, would be silly. Canada had been very cooperative in what had been accomplished so far and he saw no reason to believe there would be any difficulty in future agreements on use of these facilities.

Federal Election

No Challenge of Govt. Policies From Opposition

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Out of the long debates of the recent session of parliament has come a wealth of speculation over the next federal election, but no clear-cut issue on which that election might be fought.

An analysis of party platforms and statements by party leaders in recent months tends to indicate that rarely, if ever, in Canadian history have the principal political organizations been closer together in their basic views.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who repeatedly has said the election will not be held before the end of the war but before the statutory expiry of the term of the present parliament next April, is expected to lead the Liberal party into the campaign with an appeal for a broad program of social and economic reconstruction.

GREAT NATION

It will be presented as a program designed to enable Canada to fill her place in the world as the great nation.

Political Aims of Canadian Labor Congress Listed

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—(CP)—C. M. Millard, chairman of the political action committee of the Canadian Congress of Labor, yesterday issued a 29-point manifesto of the CCL's political objectives, defining as the keystone of the program the provision of useful jobs at union wages for every man and woman able and willing to work.

Mr. Millard, an executive member of the CCL and CCF member of the Ontario legislature for York West, said in a statement summarizing the 3,500-word "Labor program for political action" that the program had been prepared at a conference attended by representatives of nearly all the largest unions affiliated with the CCL.

POSITIVE ATTITUDE

Stating that "organized labor must once and for all definitely adopt a positive political attitude to provide security for workers," the manifesto said:

"While our congress has endorsed the CCF as the political arm of labor in Canada and recommended, to congress unions, that they become affiliated with it, organized labor as represented in our congress must adopt its own definite political program."

The program asked a general program of social security, including family allowances, "as a supplement to, but not as a substitute for, adequate wages." It urged socialization of banking and financial institutions, lay-off pay in addition to unemployment insurance in the post-war period and a rehabilitation program for members of the armed services, the merchant marine and firefighters who served overseas.

NATIONAL FOOD POLICY

A national food policy aimed at providing good, cheap food for Canadians was proposed along with immediate establishment of a national food planning commission including representatives of governments, labor, farmers and consumers. A public and co-operative effort to raise the rural standard of living was urged, and one suggestion was for a program of rural electrification.

Construction of 500,000 new homes is urged.

Report German Army Is Leaving Spanish Border

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

PORTBOU, Spain, Aug. 15.—The German army was reported reliably today to have withdrawn its troops from the entire Franco-Spanish frontier.

The first signs of German preparation for a mass evacuation were observed along the frontier Thursday and further evidence was seen Friday.

As the end of the parliamentary session approached the two major parties seemed to find common ground on Empire relations.

Allies Penetrate Suburbs Of Paris as War in North France Becomes Slaughter front where United Kingdom, Canadian and other Allied troops cut the Falaise pocket into three segments and lunged five miles or more eastward in hot pursuit of the beaten enemy.

British 2nd and Canadian First army forces on the northern end of the line pushed out to the north and east, seizing dozens of enemy strongpoints. They reached the channel coast around Dole and the outskirts of Caen, 4 1/2 miles east of the Orne estuary and three miles north of captured Varville, and the adjacent town of Dives-sur-Mer. The latter position is 18 miles southwest of the mouth of the Seine.

2-MILE ADVANCE

Farther to the south they crossed the Dives and Vie rivers near Notre Dame d'Estrees after a two-mile advance, and captured St. Julien le Faucon, six miles to the south.

The Falaise pocket itself, in which an unknown but probably large number of enemy troops still were contained, was squeezed down further by new Allied gains all around the trap.

CONTACT MADE

Other United Kingdom troops drove in six miles from the west, captured Ecouches, six miles southeast of Putanges and five miles southwest of Argentan, and made contact with Americans moving in from the south. Dempsey's men captured Putanges yesterday, forcing a crossing of the Orne river from that town.

Directly east of Falaise, Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian 1st army made important progress, advancing about 5 1/2 miles beyond Trun to Champeau.

British United Press War Correspondent Richard D. McMillan reported from the United Kingdom: Canadian front that the entire Allied battle line was on the move and the roads were crowded with German prisoners and the wreckage of tanks, trucks and guns left behind by the fleeing Seventh army.

BADLY DEPLETED

McMillan's dispatch indicated that the 7th Army was not believed capable of making another stand even if it should succeed in getting across the Seine. The Nazi 15th Army north of the Seine was understood to have been so badly depleted through the dispatch of reinforcements to the 7th as to offer little or no threat to the crushing Allies.

The official indication that German military strength is so dissipated that the enemy is unable to put up further serious resistance either southwest or northwest of the Seine confirms our optimism and confirms the impression that the beaten Germans really are fleeing for the other side of the Rhine, where the final, decisive battle will be fought, McMillan said.

The latest definite information gleaned from Allied and German statements placed the American spearheads in the Paris region around Rambouillet, St. Arnoult, Dourdan and Etampes, on a broad arc 21 1/2 to 26 miles from Paris, but these accounts obviously were lagging far behind the fast-moving doughboys.

A Dront dispatch said one American column veered northeast from Dreux and dashed on to the Seine in the Mantes area, 30 miles northwest of Paris.

THRUST CONFIRMED

A German high command communiqué confirmed the Mantes thrust and said another American force reached the Seine in the Cernon area 13 1/2 miles farther to the northwest and squarely across the German line of retreat from Falaise.

A report from Madrid, unconfirmed, quoted Vichy sources that the Americans had reached the suburban towns of Croissy and Montreuil, both well inside the greater Paris area. Montreuil is just east of the capital.

The Madrid reports said the American column that crossed the Loire at Nantes more than a week ago had struck out for Vichy itself, cutting almost half-way across France to the outskirts of Chateauroux 94 miles northwest of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's Nazi-dominated capital.

Italian Prisoners In Minor Revolt At American Base

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—(CP)—United States troops, swinging night sticks, subdued a minor revolt at Fort Lawton July 10 by Italian prisoners who objected to being sent to Hawaiian work camps, a Seattle port of embarkation spokesman said yesterday.

Some of the Italians suffered minor injuries but none was taken to hospital and all were put aboard a ship for Hawaii.

"The prisoners still were under the impression that the Axis was winning the war," the official said, "and believed Hawaii to be under constant attack, and a few of them resisted going because the Geneva convention forbids keeping prisoners of war in combat areas."

scored on the forward deck of the 700-foot-long Strasbourg, causing three separate fires and sending her into a list. The cruiser also was left listing to starboard with decks awash. The Germans had turned gun batteries of both warships against American columns converging on the base from the east and northeast.

At the eastern end of the five-day-old beachhead, other Allied forces were believed to have reached the Cannes airfield on the outskirts of the popular Riviera resort town, despite heavy calibre gunfire from German batteries on islands two and three miles southeast of Cannes.

Both American and French troops and British airborne forces scored new gains inland and Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme Allied Mediterranean commander, announced in his communiqué that the beachhead now totaled more than 1,000 square miles in area—believed the largest terrain ever liberated in so short a time by an amphibious invasion.

FALL LIKE NINEPINS

"Towns are falling like ninepins," a front dispatch said.

Opposition in most sections continued "relatively light," Wilson said in his communiqué, but the columns converging on Toulon were meeting strong resistance from a hastily-erected screen of mobile guns and infantry, backed by heavy coastal batteries.

Pushing down from the northeast along the inland road from St. Raphael, the Americans broke into the outer suburbs of Toulon with the capture of Solles-Pont, five miles from the base in a three-mile advance and pressed steadily on.

An outflanking column captured the road junction of La Roquebrussanne, 14 miles north of Toulon and 20 miles almost due east of Marseille, and drove well into high ground farther west.

(A BBC correspondent in southern France said Toulon "is going to fall and fall very soon.")

French patriots were almost as numerous as Allied soldiers in the advances on the western end of the beachhead. Carrying all types of guns from ancient rifles to the most modern makes, they were dealing with German rear guard snipers while American armored and infantry units maintained their steady rate of advance toward Toulon.

Meteor Results in Great Excitement In United States

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A fiery object believed to have been a meteor hurtled brilliantly across middle western skies yesterday and reports of its "landing" in a hundred places plagued newspapers, police, radio stations and military officials.

Startled witnesses from western Ohio, all over Indiana, eastern Illinois and northern Kentucky, variously describing the phenomenon as a big explosion, a silver flash in the sky, a plume of black smoke, were agreed generally that the object's direction was westward and its occurrence about 8:15 a.m.

An Indiana housewife said it drove her chickens to a frenzy. Ohioans telephoned airports that a plane was crashing. Illinois police thought "a nitro-glycerine plant" had exploded. And a southern Indiana minister who said the meteor landed a quarter-mile from his automobile wrote a description for a newspaper which he entitled, "Preacher Smells Brimstone."

Attack Germans

CHARTRES, Aug. 15.—(Delayed)—(AP)—French mobs, celebrating the end of four years of Nazi rule, ran mad with freedom today.

Townfolk beat up collaborationists, shaved the heads of 20 women who consorted with German troops and clashed in bloody street battles with enemy snipers.

Some 150 resistance leaders seized arms and began attacking Germans inside the city as American troops assaulted the town's defence perimeter with anti-tank guns.

Five resistance patriots were killed in running street fights with the last 100 Germans in Chartres, but their uprising forced the enemy to abandon his delaying stand. At 7 p.m. Wednesday Chartres was free.

All day gendarmes were busy restraining men, women and children of this city of 25,000. They surged around the gates of the iron-barred prefecture. Each new German prisoner marched into the enclosure was greeted with jeers, catcalls and derisive "Heil Hitlers."

These prisoners, looking dazed like punch drunk boxers, showed fear of the crowd and walked silently through the storm of outcries. Periodically the French broke into "La Marseillaise," singing with fierce revolutionary fervor.

In the raid on Germany, RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes singled out the seaport of Bremen and the synthetic oil works at Sterkrade, eight miles northwest of Essen, and hit both objectives from clear skies.

Crewmen reported leaving Bremen a mass of flame and reconnaissance pilots, who flew over the port an hour later, said a vast conflagration raged in the city, with smoke soaring 23,000 feet high.

The oil works at Sterkrade, which were hit seven times previously, were given a "well concentrated" assault, the air ministry said.

Misquito bombers again carried the attack to Berlin while other British bombers hit Cologne and unidentified targets in northwest Germany.

Four British bombers were lost in the widespread night raids, which included laying mines in enemy waters.

themselves on the east bank of the stream opposite north-east Prussia, were firing their rifles into the enemy lines. The Germans were reported hurrying fresh reserves from central Germany into battle daily.

Konev's army burst through the German defences below Radom after capturing the Nazi bastion of Sandomierz, at the confluence of the Vistula and San rivers 115 miles south of Warsaw, and forcing a new crossing of the Vistula between Mscow and Winiary, four and 10 miles northwest of Sandomierz.

Fanning out in all directions from their new bridgehead, Konev's forces linked up with units already west of Sandomierz to extend the Soviet hold on the west bank of the Vistula to 75 miles and plunged on to the north past Radom, 55 miles south of Warsaw and 33 miles northeast of Sandomierz.

The tremendous striking power of the columns biting into Warsaw's southern flank was indicated when Premier Marshal Josef Stalin commended 43 generals in his order of the day announcing the new crossing of the Vistula.

CUT DOWN WEDGE

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army already has whittled down the German wedge that penetrated his defence of the suburb of Ossow six and a half miles west-northwest of Praga, and was expected to join Konev in the climactic assault on the Polish capital, possibly next week.

Through several tributaries of the Vistula lie across Konev's route into southern Warsaw, none is so formidable an obstacle as the Vistula itself and it will may

Sub Caught in Nutcracker

"The sub twisted and turned like a scared rabbit... eventually an explosion was seen and the U-boat sank quickly in a smother of foam," said crew members of a Canadian Coastal Command flying boat, describing how they successfully attacked a German pig-boat off Iceland recently. The above photograph was taken just after the aircraft passed over the submarine on its first run. Note the plume from the charge exploding on the far side and the "quivers" of the two depth charges entering the water on the near side, indicating that the submarine was caught between the explosions. Enemy gun crews previously had been swept from the decks by intense and accurate machine gun fire from the Canadian aircraft. F.O. Tommy Cooke, DFC, of Clinton, Ont., and Dauphin, Man., was captain, and F.O. Bert Hunter, of Langley, B.C., co-pilot.

most decorated crew in postal command.

A few weeks before the Normandy invasion they outwitted two Nazi destroyers and attacked a surfaced U-boat in the Bay of Biscay and once before that, when they were under an RAF skipper, saved an Allied convoy in the North Atlantic single-handedly by driving off six Heinkel 177's that were trying to sink the convoy with glider bombs. Crowds Greet Former Mayor At Montreal daughters. He was released from internment camp near Fredericton early this week.

The crowd was cheering as Mr. Houde stepped into the concourse, and surged around him as he was led to a microphone linked with the station's public address system.

"Such a reception is not only proof of your friendship and esteem," he said, "but it is also a warning to present authorities that they must feel public opinion as it is."

"What the future has in store for me, I do not know," he said, "but there is one thing you can be sure of. It is that I will always remain upright."

"Every time the least of your rights and privileges are threatened, I'll be at the front to defend you. You must feel that need there is to stand together."

IN GOOD HEALTH

"I cannot tell you that four years of internment are nothing. I believe that someone would have preferred to see me back in my dress suit, lying in a coffin, rather than back alive but providence has decided otherwise and I am back in good health."

"I have suffered away from you, and I have suffered knowing you were exposed to great dangers in spite of the too few defenders you had."

When someone in the crowd shouted "St. Laurent" apparently in reference to Justice Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Houde said:

"When you utter that name, I presume you are referring to the St. Lawrence river."

NOT SO BADLY OFF

"When I was thinking of the distresses, anguish and miseries you were being subjected to and when I was thinking of those who left their blood overseas and who will never see again the enhancing beauties of our dear country, I was thinking that I was not so badly off that you had not abandoned me."

Switching into English, Mr. Houde added:

"I want to tell the people of the English language present here and those who will read about this in the newspapers that I have not been the victim of British fair play."

"I was envious of the victim of a political party and a political organization and nothing else. Some day I will meet the English population and will let them know the truth and they will know that I was right."

"The English population was wrong because it was wronged." Reverting to French, Mr. Houde said "we will see one another again: we shall discuss together, we will agree together and we shall vote."

IMPROMPTU CAVALCADE

After his address, Mr. Houde was escorted to the station entrance where a flower-banked open car was waiting to take him home. Other vehicles swung in behind to form an impromptu cavalcade that swept along Laurier street, up Mandel street to Sherbrooke street and then eastward to the Houde home on east-end St. Hubert street.

HOUDE'S FUTURE PLANS FOR "NATION ONLY"

By PIERRE LEMOYNE

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—(CP)—Camille Houde said last night, as he arrived back in Montreal after four years in internment that "I have no immediate plans for myself, but for the nation—yes."

Surrounded by his wife and three daughters as he was interviewed while his train approached Montreal, the former mayor said "I am waiting for events which could bring a great change."

Such events he listed as the end of the war, a federal election or developments in the provincial political field.

"I wish to consult my friends before making public any decisions as to my future plans," he said. "I will reveal my plans to the public at the proper time, possibly at a public meeting."

Of his four years in internment for advising Montrealers not to comply with national registration regulations, he said:

FOR NATION ONLY
"I spent four years in an internment camp for the nation only. I was always cheerful, so as to give a good example to others. I couldn't appear demoralized before those poor people whose families are abroad and whose only news are death notices."

The man who served four terms as mayor of Montreal said he had "no idea" whether he would run again for the mayoralty post in municipal elections next December.

"I will go where the population needs me most," he said, but would not specify whether he referred to municipal, provincial or federal fields.

RAPS INTERNMENT

Of the events leading up to his internment, he said only that "a man who spent 23 years in public life should not have been placed in an internment camp." He added that if a large crowd was waiting for him when the train reached Montreal, he would consider it "a reward for having tried to do my duty and to represent public opinion in Quebec."

Mr. Houde appeared cheerful on the trip from St. Hyacinthe and said he was looking forward to seeing residents of Montreal.

"I hope they feel the same way towards me," he added.

He revealed that while in internment he had studied German and Italian—with fellow-internees as teachers—and now he could speak both languages "not fluently but well enough."

Says No Nation Can Stand Alone In Post-War Era

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15.—(CP)—In the post-war world no nation can stand out alone from the rest and in the post-war era nations must co-operate to prevent new gangsterism and the pestilence of national power from bringing ruin to the world, said Percy Phillip of Ottawa in an address last night.

The New York Times Canadian representative, speaking at the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association banquet, urged peoples not to fall out about the kind of house to be built to preserve peace. He said to do so would betray those who have fought and suffered in this war for the mistakes made after the First Great War.

PEOPLE TO BLAME

The failure of the League of Nations was the failure of all peoples, he said, adding the League was human effort after righteousness whereas quarrels were always between goods and not between good and evil.

"The unholy scare that this war has given us all has changed the whole scheme of our little world and its ways of acting and thinking... I think that if we remember the scare we have all had we shall be forced to do a lot better than last time at overcoming our national prejudices, our racial vanities and our personal wishes."

Mr. Phillip suggested editors keep before their readers some conception of the diabolical intentions mankind has made and scare people into getting together and keeping the peace.

CANCER PUBLICITY

Dr. L. A. Macdonald, executive director of the Manitoba Cancer Relief and Research Institute, advocated greater publicity about cancer. The death rate from cancer could be reduced 40 to 50 per cent if the public knew more about the disease, he said.

Money spent on cancer research was negligible in comparison to that being spent on treatment, said Dr. Macdonald. Two ways suggested were public education on treatment of cancer and centralization of group research in place of individual research.

Canada's standard of employment in post-war years will depend on continuance of a large-scale savings program until such time as readjustment to peacetime pursuits has been attained, said D. B. Mansur of Ottawa, assistant chairman of the National War Finance Committee.

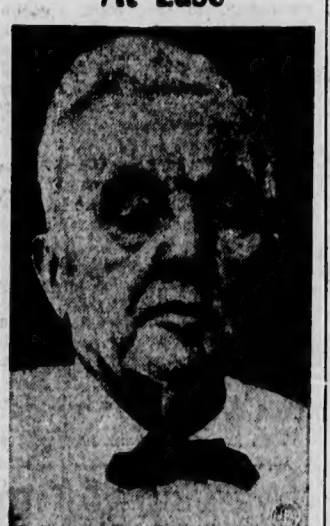

VICTORY "LET-DOWN"

A sense of relaxation and emotional relief will probably be experienced as the European war draws to a close, he said. He stressed the danger of this being followed by a let-down in the willingness of people to continue their support of the savings program, price controls and other features of wartime living necessary in preventing inflation.

A Letter from Home!

When Hon. Ray Atherton, U.S. Ambassador to Canada, visited the RCAF station at Whitehorse a few days ago, he was surprised to be welcomed with the sound of bagpipes, played as the RCAF guard of honor marched past in tribute to the distinguished guest. He is shown in the above picture inspecting the guard. The pipes were played by LAC N. G. Dickel, student-pilot of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, from Dunedin, N.Z., who is currently stationed on the North West Staging Route while awaiting the next phase of his training. Dickel, whose grandparents went to New Zealand from Scotland, acquired his pipes from an ancient Scotsman now resident in New Zealand who understood the peace.

Dear

This has been a wind-up week here, and in general there is at this writing, at the end of the week, a lull. We have received the final result of the provincial general election, with a total of 51 Social Credit members elected, against a combined opposition of six, which is what the opposition strength was when the Social Credit government was elected first in 1935. The 10-day race meeting came to an end Wednesday after an unusually successful period, both as to attendance, receipts and quality of racing. And while we may have reached the "dog days" before the start of autumn activity here, we continue to turn our eyes toward you boys over there, and keep you uppermost in our minds as the mighty Allied Armies of liberation surge forward. But here is the news from here in detail.

Wheat production in Alberta this year may reach 112,000,000 bushels compared to 80,000,000 bushels produced in 1943, according to figures released by the provincial government. Struck by an auto said by RCMP to have been driven by Gerald L. Jarvis, 14-year-old Hazel Norma Burton, also of Jarvis, was killed instantly. The accident took place on the highway between Jarvis and Westlock.

A street railway conductor escaped with only superficial cuts to his face, after the westbound tram he was operating crashed into the side of a southbound moving freight train between 102 and 103 streets on Whyte avenue. None of the 10 passengers aboard the coach was injured.

Col. E. B. Wilson, CBE, ED, a former officer commanding The Royal Edmonton Regiment now in Italy, in a letter to Mayor John W. Fry expressed appreciation for the congratulatory message sent by the City of Edmonton to Northern Alberta men serving overseas. Capt. Erskine L. Mollett, former member of the administrative and training staff of the 2nd (R) Battalion, Edmonton Fusiliers, has been appointed assistant educational officer of Military District 13.

Police are investigating the theft of approximately $3,100 from the premises of John Boruch, proprietor of a rooming house at 1018 95 street. Boruch told police that the money had been stolen on Sunday from two suitcases in his room at the rear of his shoe repair shop, which forms part of the premises.

Premier Ernest Manning's Social Credit government will seat 51 members in the next legislature, it was revealed after complete returns from all constituencies were tabulated.

Twenty-five young football enthusiasts turned out at Clarke Stadium Monday night as the Canadian Athletic Club held its first workout under the direction of Ken McAuley in anticipation of the formation of a city junior rugby football league.

Walk-Rite "A" registered its ninth victory without a defeat in the City Girls' Football League, turning back the Army and Navy Pals 4-1 in the second half of the doubleheader at Kingsway Park. Gen' Spargo pitched two-hit ball in the opener as CP Air Lines won from Walk-Rite "B" 4-4. Alberta has marked its first six months of 1944 to total 1,721,157 head, well over the 1,113,706 marketed in the corresponding period of 1943, according to the provincial department of agriculture. Former University of Alberta student, W. L. Watson, was an aide to President F. D. Roosevelt during the President's Pacific tour.

Paul Abraham, young Cherhill district Indian, sought by Royal Canadian Mounted Police in connection with the death of his wife several weeks ago, has been placed under arrest at Grande Prairie, and will be charged with murder, RCMP here announced. An error at first base, a sacrifice by Mark Marlock, and a single to short field by Jerry Verant in the last of the ninth at Kingsway Park, allowed Lloyd Slimodynes to score and give the USAF officers a 4-3 victory over Moose in a City Men's Baseball League fixture.

Wilbur Ray set the Dodgers down with four hits and the Yanks marked up a 4-0 shutout in a Senior Baseball League game at Renfrew Park. The U.S. Army club now holds slightly more than a game lead in the race for the bye in the coming play-offs, with four left to play as against two for Dodgers.

Three RCAF officers arrived back in Edmonton after almost three years overseas service. They are F.O. A. F. Dodd, 10641 123 street; P.O. O. L. Dove, 12908 124 street; P.O. J. A. Campbell, 10087 94 street. Sometime in October the uniform of the U.S. Women's Army Corps will be added to the variety already to be seen on the streets here. According to an announcement in North Star, Alaskan Division ATC paper, word from Washington indicates that the first contingent will arrive about the beginning of October. Lt-Col. D. G. L. took to make a whole set of pipes for a New Zealand Highland regiment pipe band which had to leave its own pipes buried somewhere in Crete early in 1941. Air Vice-Marshal T. A. Lawrence, air officer commanding North West Air Command, greeted the ambassador when he visited the RCAF station at Whitehorse and at Watson Lake. Mr. Atherton spent a few hours with U.S. and Canadian fliers at both stations on his way to Alaska. He was much impressed with the smartness of the RCAF guard of honor which was on hand to welcome him at both stations. The ambassador was accompanied by Mrs. Atherton and their children.

Having a lengthy criminal record dating back to 1932, George Wade, Vancouver, was found guilty in district court by His Honor Judge J. D. Matheson on a charge of being in possession of house-breaking tools, and was sentenced to serve two years in Prince Albert penitentiary.

Prospects of a special session of the Alberta legislature this fall now appear remote, according to government spokesmen. Chief Justice T. M. Tweedie of the trial division of the Alberta supreme court, has been appointed to that post in succession to Chief Justice W. C. Ives, who has resigned from the court prior to retirement on pension. Chief Justice Tweedie was born at River John, N.S., on March 4, 1872. He was admitted to the Alberta bar in 1907, and was appointed a judge of the trial division, Alberta supreme court, in 1921.

Dawson Creek took the jump on the U.S. Enlisted Men in the opening series of the American football tournament when they defeated the local representatives 1-2 in the best-of-three play-off at Kingsway Park.

Mrs. K. Saunders, Mrs. O. Anderson, Mrs. G. Skinner and Mrs. E. Robinson became the four semi-finalists in the city women's golf tournament being played at Prince Rupert, by registering victories in the quarter-finals. Representations have been made to national defence headquarters at Ottawa seeking permission to use the arena at the Exhibition grounds for hockey this winter.

Operation of an "owl bus service" on the run from Jasper avenue and McDougall hills, to 85 avenue and 104 street, South Side, is being considered by the city commissioners. The last of the 250 houses being built in the Norwood-Parkdale district have been turned over by the contractors to the Wartime Housing Ltd.

Survey of potential power development on the Lockhart River will be undertaken by the Calgary Power Company if mining explorations being carried out in the Yellowknife area fulfill current satisfactory reports, C. A. Gaherty, Montreal, president of the company, stated in an interview here.

With 38 bombing raids against Hitler-held Europe to his credit F.O. W. L. "Bill" Dark, DFC, was "awfully glad to get home" Friday morning but after almost three years in England he said he "kind of hated to leave" because he'd had such a "lot of fun the last couple of years".

Receiving great pitching from their new chucker, August Wullenweber, who posted two rousing efforts, a one-hitter and a four-hit performance, the Edmonton U.S. Enlisted Men shut out Dawson Creek twice, 2-0 and 1-0, to advance to the finals of the American football tournament being held at Kingsway Park.

Forest Hunter tossed a three-hitter at Renfrew Park and Yanks improved their position atop the Senior Baseball League standings by defeating U.S. Signals 5-1, thus increasing their lead over the Dodgers to a game and a half. The full nine innings took only 91 minutes to play, a record for the year.

"If Canada is to maintain its democratic way of life its citizens must become more interested in living than in making a living," P. D. McArthur, Howick, Que., president of the Progressive Conservative Association, stated in an interview here. Flood waters in the Pembina-Paddle river region are too high in some sections to permit surveys of land damage, according to Mos. C. E. Gerhart, minister of municipal affairs.

Alberta butter production, 5,546,314 pounds for the month of July lagged 7.2 per cent behind production for the same month of 1943, it is revealed in a report by D. H. McCallum, provincial dairy commissioner.

August 19

Units of the Reserve Army in training at Barren Camp for the last two weeks are due to return here on Sunday, bringing to an end the annual camp period. The camp was divided into two sections and the first group of units returned on Aug. 6.

There will be a city tennis tournament held at the Glenora club courts commencing Aug. 26. This will revive pleasant memories, as many of you boys will recall tournaments on the same courts that you have either played in or watched. There is a serious shortage of tennis balls, as a result of war priorities, but officials feel they can scrape up enough to suffice. Due to the presence of a large number of classy American players, it is expected the tourney will be a great success. That's all for now. Best of everything until next week.

National Education

Dr. E. Floyd Willoughby, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, says in Winnipeg that unless the Dominion government assumes a share in the cost of education, education will never be raised to the status it should occupy in a democratic society.

This is precisely the position which has been taken by The Edmonton Bulletin on many occasions.

Democracy rests upon an enlightened public. The greater the spread of education, the greater the democratic efficiency. In other words, education is the only justification for democracy.

And yet it is obvious that the tax resources of a province are not wide enough to pay for the kind of an educational system a democracy requires. For education, to be adequate, should be the largest single item of expense in government. We should have better schools, more diversified courses and, above all, a standard of pay for teachers which will attract into the profession the best minds in the community and establish teaching as the pivotal profession, which, indeed, it is.

Dr. Willoughby suggests that the Dominion government should aid the provinces by grants to carry out this program.

This, of course, is imperative and should be done at the earliest possible moment. But it would be infinitely better if, at some later time, the British North America Act were amended to make education the sole responsibility of the Dominion.

That step would not only afford unlimited funds for education but would set up a single educational standard all across the country.

At present we have nine systems of education and consequently nine types of Canadianism.

Surely education and democracy should rest on a sounder basis than that.

CKUA's License

There has been an unconscionable delay on the part of Ottawa in dealing with the repeated applications of radio station CKUA for a commercial license.

The first application was made in early 1941 while the station, the property of the government of Alberta, was operated by the university.

Towards the end of March, 1944, the operation of the station was transferred to the department of telephones and the application for a commercial license was renewed. On June 26, the situation was studied by the board of governors of the CBC.

From that day to this, no decision has been given.

Station CKUA has been operated with discretion and taste. There is no reason on earth why it should not enter the commercial field. Calgary enjoys three commercial stations. And surely, with three-fifths of Alberta's population within the Edmonton trading zone, Edmonton should be served as well as Calgary.

It has been hinted that the granting of this license is deferred because there is local opposition to it. Naturally there is opposition to it from competing stations. But to listen to the objections of competitors is, inferentially, to endorse a monopoly. It is to restrict private enterprise.

There is this to be said, too. The people of Alberta have just returned the Manning Government to office by a tremendous landslide majority. This majority must be interpreted as a popular endorsement of current administrative policy.

It is obvious that the commercial operation of CKUA is part of administrative policy. It is equally obvious, then, that the people of Alberta are behind the request for the licensing of this station.

There is no reason why the Alberta government's radio station should not be as useful as that operated by the government of Manitoba.

Ottawa's failure and the failure of the CBC to grant this application is not merely an affront to a small group of people who want to go into the broadcasting business. It is an affront to all the people of Alberta.

Sunspots

It was only a brief item in the news columns, jammed in under an unimpressive headline, but its implications are so tremendous that something more should be added by way of explanation and amplification.

We refer, of course, to the story about sunspots, to the announcement by the department of transport's meteorological section that the 11-year sunspot cycle has returned and that for the next five or six years these queer blemishes on the solar body will be in full operation.

Those whose period of awareness began after 1933 will not feel the full impact of this dreadful news. But those who can recall the last sunspot age will quake with apprehension.

For while sunspots are blamed, and perhaps rightfully, for static on the radio and unusual weather, they were also blamed for so many other things that the sunspot age became preeminently the age of alibis. Any strange sickness that baffled the medical profession, during the sunspot period, was laid to sunspots. Rainy weather, blistering weather, short tempers, family quarrels, political stupidities, changes in governments, tight shoes, soured milk, fallen cakes, fallen arches, motor-car accidents and rheumatic pains—all were ascribed to the fact that the sun had broken out in an inexplicable rash.

If the jelly failed to jelly or a husband forgot to mail his wife's letters or a fellow got jilted by his best girl, it was always sunspots.

And now, presumably, we are going to have it again.

It is rather ominous in view of the fact that most of the nations and all the political parties are about to remake the world. Just at a time in the earth's history when alibis should be ruled out, there comes along again the greatest alibi of all time.

Mussolini's Book

There have been some manifestations of impatience over the current tendency of almost everyone to write a book. This is such a super-articulate age that the world is positively flooded with literature which is mostly excessive.

So many books are written, in fact, that the process of individual thought has been noticeably depressed. Why think at all when one can lean on the profuse advertisements of others?

However, there are exceptions to every rule. And the book just written by Benito Mussolini will likely prove an exception to the unhappy rule that too many books do confuse rather than enlighten.

For if a book is a medium for the display of erudition it can also be a medium for the display of folly. And if the excerpts given in the news columns from Mussolini's book are a fair sample of the whole, Italians will regard the fallen Duce and wonder how on earth they could ever have chosen such an ass for a master.

It should constitute a warning for those hosts of authors who today with such reckless abandon take their pens in hand.

Parliament and the War's End

Betting in Ottawa Favors November as Date of Victory

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA—The climax of the war in Europe provided a background for the session of Parliament which has just ended, and the progress of the war is undoubtedly the major factor in Canadian politics at the moment. There will be an election when the war in Europe is over. When will that be?

The current odds in Ottawa put the date somewhere in November. So with the prorogation of the fifth and last session of the 19th Parliament, an era in Canadian affairs is passing rapidly away, an era that extends from the unreal days of phony war, through the stark and fearful reality of 1940, the dire spread of war to Russia and the western Pacific in 1941, the nerve-racking tug-of-war as the balance slowly shifted in 1942, the mounting of Allied power in 1943, to the final great climaxes of the present.

Good-bye to the 19th Parliament: but in its record the future will find connected threads of the greatest chapter yet in our history. Its members and its ministers sweated in the agony and the toll of long months crowded with dark days at times in which it seemed the future rested only on the fragile prayers read each day by Mr. Speaker Glen.

But no one is thinking now about this history, valiant and stirring and somehow unbelievable as it is. Let us see the pattern of our future. It is clearer than one would think after all the debate.

If we are to have prosperity after the war, it will rest upon three principles. There is less disagreement about these basic factors and the philosophy of life which they reflect, than one would think. Differences of detail do exist, of course, differences of the cart-before-the-horse variety. But more than one would expect, the revolutionary transition that divides 1944 from 1939 has forced Parliament to rediscover basic economic principles and to act upon them for fear that procrastination in a time like this will bring disaster.

So if we have prosperity after the war, it will depend upon:
1. Revival of an operating world system in which the disease of war will be stayed and the prospect of economic progress will be resumed.

2. The expansion of economic activity inside Canada, depending upon an active and generous investment in new means of production and their employment freely.
3. Maintenance of a more liberal standard of living or, as the economists put it, a high rate of consumption.

These are the basic principles. How far did Parliament go, between Jan. 27 and Aug. 14—123 days of sittings—in setting the stage for their fulfillment? The record actually is impressive, for much of the vast energy unleashed into war projects lapped over into this first installment of post-war plans. Parliament was often deep in the bitter asperities of politics and often troubled with conflict over the evolution of national policy which has already outdistanced many of Parliament's professed radicals. But in a session devoted to shaping the economic future Parliament displayed surprising unanimity on new social objectives, far more perhaps than any Parliament in the foreseeable future will be able to rally.

Canada has associated itself with steps to create the world system foreshadowed in the Moscow Declaration. But even more important has been Canada's influence within the British Commonwealth to reduce its restrictive tendencies. No voice has argued diminution of Canadian autonomy; hardly any has argued against an inclusive world system for all peace-minded nations.

At a time when Canadian well-being has rested upon vast trade, Canada has sought to project its trading relations into a brighter future. Associated with steps to restrain monetary factors likely to disrupt commercial stability, Canada is a partner in the new world monetary plans and has been exploring other proposals to promote the flow of goods.

Export credit guarantees up to $100 million and foreign trade credits up to $200 million, will be available under the exports insurance scheme.

The promotion of economic activity in Canada rests basically upon the rate of investment after the war. Mr. Towers' estimate that investments flowing at the rate of $1,500 million annually would be required, has set the pattern of parliamentary thinking. Will this be attained? No one knows how much private investment will be unleashed when war ends. But Parliament acted to close the gap substantially, through its $250 million farm improve-

"Oh, don't mind, fellows, guess I forgot to tell you I brought my wife along to the convention!"

One of Poland's Great Patriots

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—When he was in Washington early in the summer, Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk (pronounced Mick-o-wy-chik) of the Polish government-in-exile in London, made a deep impression on everyone he met.

He was quite outside the pattern of Poland's pre-war representatives—the upper class Poles educated abroad with a background of vast feudal estates. It could be said truly that Mikolajczyk was a man of the people.

Hearing his story, told quietly without bravado, you realized he himself had suffered and lived through much of Poland's terrible history. In three separate wars he had enlisted as a private.

His story after the collapse of Poland in 1939, beginning with his escape into Hungary, reads like Dumas or Dickens. But it is not a romantic tale. Its theme is grim, undying loyalty in the face of such terror and such horror as this cruel world has rarely seen.

Against this background, the seeming failure of his mission to Moscow has a special sadness. The very fact that he went was in itself hopeful. Now, however, he comes back to London empty-handed.

Mikolajczyk went to Moscow determined to reconcile the differences between his government-in-exile and the Polish committee of National Liberation created in Moscow. From reports of observers, he was prepared to go a long way.

He knew very well the persons in his cabinet to whom Stalin objected. Undoubtedly, he would have consented to a complete revision of that cabinet, incorporating in it representatives of the Committee of Liberation.

The hope for a fusion of the two which would result in a new government truly representative of the broad elements of the new Poland to be restored when the fighting ends. It would be purged of the old guard that never can overcome its hatred of Russia. On the other hand, it would not be a Soviet puppet.

That was the hope. Instead, judging from reports out of Moscow, Mikolajczyk was offered no more than a chance to join up with the Polish committee.

The committee is made up of reputable Poles, some of them with distinction—although for the most part, as individuals, they lack stature in their homeland. But many have been, in a sense, hostages of the Soviet union. They have been closer to Moscow than to Warsaw.

Premier Mikolajczyk could hardly have accepted what Stalin offered. It would have meant betraying the democratic forces for whom he speaks. What is more, it would have been a useless gesture. Since no controlled committee or government can ever restore Poland.

Soon the Soviet delegation will arrive in Washington to take part in the Dumbarton Oaks conference. The Soviet plan for world organization has been unveiled, indirectly in a pseudonymous article in an obscure publication. It parallels the British-U.S. pattern of an executive board of four, and a council of smaller powers.

Instead of an international police force, it provides for an internationalized bomber command. These bombers, in the Soviet interpretation, could be over an aggressor nation in an hour or two; and if that "impression" did not deter the warlike power, then the bombs would. This is power, and perhaps essential power. But something more than naked power, something more than mere accumulations of force, will be necessary if the conference ending this war are not merely to punctuate an armed truce. Russia must know that world opinion will not accept a puppet Poland.

The Patent Pirates

By J. H. GRAY

Whatever else may be said about the Germans and their mad dreams of world conquest, this must be said to the credit of their intellect: They know a good idea when they see it.

They have indeed a genius for recognizing ideas of great value, just as they have a genius for turning good ideas to evil account. They quickly recognized the possibilities of the submarine, an American invention, as a war weapon. They took a British invention, the tank, and turned it into a blitzkrieg spearhead. They took the airplane and made it into war's most horrible instrument.

The international cartel as an instrument of national policy seems to be a German invention. Yet the basis upon which the whole German cartel system is founded springs from a brilliant idea of a British chemist, Sir William Perkins.

Wherever the United States department of justice has probed into the German cartel underground it has hit the Interessen-Gemeinschaft Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft—the jaw-breaking formal name of I. G. Farben which means Community of Interest of Dye Industries, Incorporated. In the old days this could have been accurately shortened to "The German Dye Trust." Such is no longer the case, for I. G. Farben has expanded in all directions in Germany, its tentacles have spread into every country of the world and have sought to strangle and destroy competitive enterprise wherever they have spread.

What started as a bright idea in the head of a British scientist has expanded into an international conspiracy so great that no one save a few German chemists know its full ramifications. The United States department of justice has laid bare its American operations, has provided a mere glimpse of its operations in Canada, Britain, France and South America. But I. G. Farben had engulfed all Europe, and Hitler's quick conquests in 1940 can be directly traced to the structure built upon Sir William Perkins' idea.

As an 18-year-old student at the Royal College of London, William Henry Perkins was experimenting with coal tar in an effort to get a synthetic quinine. He came up, instead, with an aniline dye, a delicate purple solution called mauveine. His brilliant mind quickly discerned the profound and revolutionary nature of his discovery. He sought to found a coal-tar industry, but neither the British government nor British capital showed the slightest interest. But the Germans did. They quickly saw the chemical vista opened by a coal-tar industry.

The tactics used to force the greatest of American industries to obey Farben orders—deceit and fraud and patent racketeering—were the tactics used in the 1880's to arrest the fruits of Perkins' genius.

from England. Perkins was a student under the famous Professor Hoffman in London.

Here is Perkins' own description of the German patent pirating methods, quoted from the book, "Germany's Master Plan," by Joseph Borkin and Charles A. Welsh:

"He found from sad experience that whenever he sent over an application for a patent on a new dye-stuff, or new chemical compound of importance, the German patent office would at once call in, for consultation, the leading German chemists who were interested in that line of work. He would get request after request for more detailed information of every part of the process; and then, when they had got from him every bit of information they could, they would grant a patent to some one of his German competitors."

The German system was well summed up by Mr. Lloyd George in the debate on the patent law of 1907 when he said:

"Big foreign syndicates have one very effective way of destroying British industry. They first apply for patents on a very considerable scale. They suggest every combination, for instance, in chemicals which human ingenuity can possibly think of. These combinations the syndicates have not tried themselves. They are not in operation, say, in Germany or elsewhere, but the syndicates put them in their patents in vague terms so as to cover any possible invention that may be discovered afterward in this country."

That was in 1907. The German Dye Trust has come a long way since then. How far will be sketched in another article.

Books Are Rationed in England

Limited Supply of Paper Makes Reprinting Very Difficult

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

The British literary scene is summed up in a trade announcement by the extremely superior firm of publishers, the Hogarth Press.

The announcement is "Our clients will receive fair treatment and as prompt as circumstances will allow."

To anyone who knows the cajolery needed before the war, to induce British booksellers to increase their stocks, these words speak volumes. They imply no censure of the trade. They mean that a public, which used only to borrow, has taken to buying books, that there are not enough books to go around, and that when a book wins general attention it goes smack out of print.

It sometimes does before it is published. In that case, a book-seller who has ordered fifty may get five copies. And it often stays out of print, sometimes because it takes three months to get supplies back on the market, more usually because there is no paper for the job.

One English publisher could have sold a hundred thousand copies of an important book, but he had just enough paper to print ten thousand. A woman novelist last year had what looked like a rollicking success—her first but it was stopped short at eight thousand copies because her publishers firmly decided that she was not entitled to any more paper. They had other authors to consider.

Best-Sellers

This means that in England, at the moment, for the first time in history, best-sellers are out of favor. If indulged, one of them might eat up the publishers' entire paper quota for twelve months. So, as best-selling authors cannot be casually snubbed, even in wartime, they are allowed to cool.

The last thousand or two of their large first editions are doled out to the trade, the demand is discouraged. Or they are kept waiting until there is paper to spare for a big enough number. The system has its hardships for best-sellers, who are not used to waiting.

Other authors have been flatly told that their excellent novels, too long to be fitted into the few reams of paper available, will stay in manuscript until after the war. When publishers are forced to make-do on a third of their pre-war paper supply for all purposes they have to be ruthless. Their educational books, their technical books, which are essential, their bread and butter books which go on selling year after year, must be kept in print. Many of them are not kept in print. Large numbers will now never be reprinted.

One strange fact is that new publishers may start a business, and may buy paper "off the quota." However, new publishers can get few books, either the books are not being written, or the coveted authors are bound by existing contracts.

Poaching

So, in default of new books by these authors, the new publishers offer enormous sums for reprint rights. The original publishers cannot reprint—they have no paper. Shall they allow their authors to take advantage of these offers? They cannot help themselves be-

Authority, Bulletin: The writer was much interested in a recent letter in your columns signed D.J.R. on Spiritualism. As a Christian I must fully endorse sentiments contained in that letter. It is the evil spirits that are about us that are giving these poor dupes a lead, if any at all.

A large percentage of course is fraud and deception. Cults are known in some pagan lands that are devil worshippers. Spiritualism, we hear about is in the same category, and a grave danger, masquerading as it does, in the name of religion.

The tragedy of it all is that there are millions of men and women, who, having cut themselves off from all authority (Christian), boasting of their liberty as such, rush headlong into the arms of every faker and evil cult that comes along.

Communism and Nazism are other examples. Truly, when authority departs from Christian churches, those churches are doomed.

Foreigners

Editor, Bulletin: While looking through the back pages of your paper I came across a letter in the August 5th edition bearing the title "No Army Call and signed 'One Who Has Seen It'."

If the writer would only be a little more explicit and define the term "foreigners" perhaps our ideas would coincide. The writer perhaps is as much a foreigner as those referred to, unless he is an American Indian.

Furthermore, I believe the Mobilization Section of the Selective Service can handle all such matters concerning the recruiting of our men. And do not forget that many of our "foreigners strutting around" are engaged in essential war industries who make it possible for "your" boys to come back.

As long as racial and class distinction persists, this world will never see the end of all wars.

McCoy Health Service

In my experience I have found the primary cause of arthritis is a toxic condition marked by changes in body chemistry. In most cases the systemic toxemia is produced by poisoning from the intestinal tract arising from faulty elimination. It is well known that the patient with arthritis is almost invariably constipated.

The constipation is caused by inadequate functioning of the colon and if this organ is studied with the X-ray, certain abnormal conditions are likely to be found such as pro-lapsus, adhesions, kinks, or a spastic contraction. Any of these may play a part in producing a stoppage of intestinal wastes with a resultant absorption of poisons. If the faulty condition of the colon is left as it is, the patient may secure some relief from the arthritis by careful dieting but is usually unable to cause it to disappear permanently. When these abnormal intestinal states are overcome by suitable treatment and the colon thereby returned to a healthy state where it throws out wastes promptly, arthritis is likely to be curable and to stay cured as long as the patient continues to observe good habits of living.

Another cause of arthritis is incorrect diet. These patients do not burn starch and sugar in the body in a normal manner and the use of such foods leaves the end-products of faulty metabolism which further burden the body. Focal infection may act as a contributing or secondary cause. It is necessary to give suitable local treatment for the purpose of cleaning up these pus pockets in the body but local treatment alone will usually not produce a permanent cure, as the arthritis generally returns.

In the successful treatment of arthritis you must first get rid of the impure, toxic condition of the blood stream and thus banish the poisons being carried in the blood which are irritating and inflaming the joints. Use every helpful measure which will cleanse and purify the blood. Get all of the eliminative organs to working, use a diet of wholesome food, make sure of intestinal cleanliness by using the enema if necessary, and do this long enough and you will relieve your arthritis.

Arthritis is a disease of the whole body. The joints can only be healed from the inside; healing comes from a supply of healthy blood carrying to the joint the materials needed for repair. Build up the natural recuperative powers, use measures that send a better supply of blood through the joints, and the sick, irritated joints of arthritis lose their pain and come back closer to normal.

Even though it may not be possible to take away all of the damage done and to dissolve all the bony deformity, it is nearly always possible to return the patient to comfort and to a reasonable use of the joint, provided treatment is started soon enough and provided the patient is persistent.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Major and Minor Notes

By John Oliver

INTEREST in music increases as the war progresses. Whether or not the conflict will be concluded — in Europe at least — by the end of the calendar year, it is evident that the coming season will be one of unusual activity, not only in this city, but throughout the Allied Nations. Already there is abundant indication that there will be a large number of events here, and the same holds good elsewhere.

New York is anticipating its biggest musical season in 15 years. Already the recital department of Columbia concerts, a subsidiary of the broadcasting system of the same name, reports that it has booked 87 concerts in New York.

There will be hundreds of musical events in addition to the performances of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, the Metropolitan Opera Association and visiting orchestras, such as the Boston and Philadelphia organizations. In other cities of the United States and in London and throughout the British cities there is promise of much and widely varied music, all of which speaks well for the progress and development of the art.

Already plans are under way for the rehabilitation of music in France when the smoke of battle has cleared and the chimneys of industry ring out their message of peace. In New York, a conductor, Leon Leonardi is organizing a group of musicians who were graduated with him from the Paris Conservatoire in 1918. Included are Jose Hurbi, Robert Casadesu, pianists, and many members of the New York Philharmonic, Boston, Philadelphia, NBC and other symphony orchestras. Mr. Leonardi is planning a concert by the distinguished group to establish a scholarship at the Paris Conservatoire.

There's no telling what will cause a musical composition to become popular. The success of a song is as difficult to forecast as the result of a horse race or election. A newspaperman is generally given credit for starting it's A Long Way to Tipperary on its road to globe-girdling success in the Great War of 1914-1918. Britain's "Contemptible Little Army" as Kaiser Wilhelm the Second described the original British Expeditionary Force, was disembarking at Boulogne. A regimental band was "playing" the troops ashore. A correspondent peeked over the shoulder of a bandsman to see the name of the spirited march. He included the name in his dispatch. From then on everybody wanted copies of Tipperary, and its popularity has not been dimmed since its first great upsurge to success.

Perhaps a correspondent has started another tune of the high-road to fame, although, should this be the case, it will be a revival rather than a creation of success, the tune has been one of the best known and popular national songs for a good many years. It is the old Irish favorite Garry Owen and it is reported to be the reigning hit of the day with the intrepid, gallant United States service men on Saipan.

In the first instance Garry Owen was an Irish melody and the subject had to do with the city of Limerick on the River Shannon. The words are of the "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" kind with references to such entertaining pastimes as breaking windows, smashing lights and battering down doors. But the gay, lilting, swinging melody is a hit in any man's land. Garry Owen fits in well with the trotting or cantering of horses, and as the United States soldiers of today have taken to the melody, so did their illustrious predecessors of yesteryear.

Custer's famous Seventh Cavalry adopted the tune at the Battle of Washita, in November 1868 when the horsemen rode down on Black Kettle's camp—a day fateful for Custer who was almost overwhelmed when 2,000 of Black Kettle's allies came swooping and yelling to the rescue after some Indian women were killed. Eight years later the Seventh Cavalry again rode to the tune when it went out under Terry in June, 1876, to attack the Sioux. It was the definitive tune that fell upon the ears of 212 troopers who followed Custer in his famous charge into another Indian village, namely Crazy Horse on June 25 of the same year.

And now Leathernecks, Dough-boys and GI Joe's once more are going into battle to Garry Owen. A correspondent has cabled from the far away Marianas that cheers rose from the decks of a crowded transport when it was broadcast to the sweating soldiers aboard, and "brown savages" in thatched villagers" are swaying to its irresistible rhythms. An enemy as ferocious, but far less honorable hears:

Our hearts so stout have got us fame. For soon 'tis known from whence we came.

Officially Limerick is neutral in this war. The river Shannon flows gently, lazily on its way, almost unknown except in song. Cavalry charges are seldom heard of. But on transports, in jeeps, tanks and wherever men with fighting hearts congregate to carry on the Allied war of liberation, Garry Owen always will cause the blood to circulate faster and the pulses quicken.

Arrangements are being made for the production, late in October of W. R. Bradley's dramatic can-lata Lather, the Beautiful Queen, by the junior choir of McDonald Baptist Church, under the direction of its conductor, S. Grimwood. This cantata was given here nearly 10 years ago at the Masonic Temple, under Mr. Grimwood's direction and with solo parts taken by leading city artists. Given several performances, it was well received. Mr. Grimwood stated that rehearsals will commence next month. Singers and instrumentalists desiring to take part in the performances, are urged to contact Mr. Grimwood at 11726 98 street or by phoning him at 71343.

Bracken Outlines Nine Objectives For the Future

A job for every man, fair pay for every worker, establishment of individual responsibilities, equity for farmers, fair treatment for enterprise, opportunity for youth, equality for women, sensible security measures for those unable to carry their own weight and an expanding economy for all, were the objectives Mr. Bracken described.

Canadian Airmen Aided in Bombay Dock Explosions

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(CP)—RCAP personnel in Bombay helped throughout the night immediately following Bombay's series of dock explosions in July, the RCAF reported last night in a press release.

The release quoted Sir Horwood of Cranbrook, B.C., Canadian Legion auxiliary services officer in India, as saying the blast tossed a three-ton ship's anchor five miles through the air. Norwood himself was hurled 15 feet up the side of a building.

He said that officers and men of the RCAF base accounts office and the base post office went to the docks and worked throughout the night helping in rescue and canteen work.

U.S. Planes Pound Jap Island Bases In Western Pacific

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Striking the Japanese throughout the western Pacific area, American planes pounded enemy bases in the Volcano, Marianas and Caroline island groups Wednesday, blasting air fields, storage dumps, gun positions and other defense installations.

The United States navy reported yesterday that heavy bombers hit low Jima in the Volcanos, less than 650 miles from Tokyo. Farther south, fighter planes sped in at Rota and Pagan islands in the Marianas to strafe and bomb gun positions and enemy air strips.

May Victory Lead

O. Father, Thy protection For Warriors is implored—Prayer for divine compassion Into Thine ear is poured: Be pleased to shield from danger Loved ones, for whom we pray. Our soldiers, sailors, airmen Watch o'er them night and day.

Comfort the sick and dying. The maimed, blind, and oppressed;

The mourners, in their anguish For dear ones, now at rest; Shield those in constant peril From war-craft in the sky; That caustic home destruction And precious souls to die.

O. Ruler of all nations, To Thee we humbly pray That war with grievous terrors May cease to hold its sway; For Victory we beseech Thee—Grant early Peace we plead; And to unity of nations O. God, may Victory lead.

THE BIBLE DOWN NORTH

The Bible is again entering the homes of the ever interesting north land. Since the beginning of August, we have a new Colporteur in the person of Mr. J. D. Hamm. He is beginning his work in Dawson Creek and is meeting a keen demand for the Scriptures. In some homes he has found a definite prejudice against the Bible but has managed to overcome the barrier and to sell Bibles.

Much of the seed he sows will fall on good ground and bring forth fruit.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

ADD FIELD all-stars are here for three games at Renfrew Park this week-end with Yanks, current leaders in the Senior Baseball League. The Edmonton team secured an even break in games played at Fairbanks a short time ago. And U.S. Signals, the other American club in the local senior loop, will meet Dodgers in a regular league affair for the first half of tomorrow's doubleheader.

Fort Richardson nine visited Edmonton and played Yanks last month and an army club from Washington State is expected along for Sunday week. That's baseball.

In fastball (softball, if you like) the picture is somewhat similar. There are two American clubs in the local senior men's circuit. One of them (U.S. Officers) will represent Edmonton in the Alberta final scheduled for Lethbridge this week-end.

And at Kingsway Park a tournament has been in progress this week to settle the Alaska-Canada U.S. Armed Forces championship. Dawson Creek boys, winners of the north and central divisions were eliminated by the local Enlisted Men's team on Thursday.

Edmonton's representatives also won their first game in the series with Prince Rupert. Aleutian Islands division champs here last night by a score of 3-0. August Wullenweber, whose home is in Cincinnati, pitched for the winners and allowed one hit—he won two games the previous day.

And then it was back only in June that the Alaskan Wing Golden Gloves boxing tournament was held in the local arena. War has created a very unusual situation indeed, so far as sport in Edmonton is concerned.

Wullenweber Again Stars As Enlisted Men Triumph

With August Wullenweber, the Enlisted Men's flashy chucker from down Cincinnati way, posting another sensational pitching effort, the local Air Base club shut out Prince Rupert 3-0 at Kingsway Park Friday night.

The was the opener of the best of three series for the U.S. armed forces fastball championship of Canada-Alaska-Aleutian Islands. The playoff resumes today at 2:30 o'clock and tonight at 6 if necessary.

Wullenweber hurled a one-hitter at the Prince Rupert squad to shut them out, and in so doing rung up 25 consecutive innings without allowing a run.

A homer in the third inning by Heroux with Bob Fogarty on base clinched the game for Sgt. Bob Christian's fastballers and gave them the lead in the series. The round tripper was an inside the park homer that landed in centre field.

Following is the score by innings: Prince Rupert — 000 000-0 1 1 Enlisted Men — 102 000 x-3 4 0

Mixed Doubles Narrow Down

Four Garneau Tennis Finals To Be Played Over Week-End

Two finalists in the mixed open doubles and one in the men's singles were declared Friday night in the Garneau Tennis Club's annual tournament. Final matches of the mixed and men's doubles events will be played today and the two singles competitions will meet on Sunday.

In last night's play, S. Merville and D. Tanney defeated Jack Thorburn and L. Mackay 6-2, 6-2 in one mixed doubles semifinal, while Harry Kinloch and Gloria Hoback beat Howard Hall and Shelia Tothach 6-3, 6-2 in the other.

The match won by the Hertle-Tanney combination was close, but they were impressive and at no time was the final issue in doubt. They displayed good rallies and although the Thorburn-Mackay pair put up a good game, the winners found the going fairly easy.

Defending champions Harry Kinloch and Gloria Hoback also had somewhat of an easy triumph. They were always ahead and at no time were they in any serious trouble. Last season's champions will attempt to turn back Hertle-Tanney this afternoon to retain the crown. Last night also saw the completion of the men's singles semi-final between Les McManus and Dr. Kinloch. This match, which took three hours to complete, was started on Thursday but called off account of darkness and had to be finished Friday. McManus won the event by taking last night's set 6-1. He will now meet Harry Kinloch, defending champion, on Sunday afternoon for the honors.

The ladies' singles finals will also be on Sunday, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. It brings together defending titlist Norma Mackay and once city open champ, Isabel Hooper. Norma will be hard pressed to hold her crown.

Following are last night's results and the remaining draws:

FRIDAY'S RESULTS
Mixed open doubles (semi-finals)—S. Hertle-D. Tanney defeated Jack Thorburn-L. Mackay 6-2, 6-2; Harry Kinloch-Gloria Hoback defeated Howard Hall-Shelia Tothach 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. Skinner Drops Final On 18th Hole

By DON KILLIPS

Edging out Mrs. G. Skinner in a truly close and exciting silver division final at the Prince Rupert course on Friday afternoon by a two up margin on the 18th, Mayfair's Mrs. K. Saunders became the city ladies' golf champion for 1944.

The tournament which started Monday, wound up yesterday with finals in all events being played, followed by presentation of prizes and the annual meeting.

One up teeing off on the last hole, Mrs. Saunders played every shot carefully to register a six, one under Mrs. Skinner, to win the trophy. Mrs. Skinner got into the bunker on the 18th and although she made a nice recovering shot, her putting failed her on this green and she took a seven.

Playing in adverse weather conditions there was a strong wind blowing that had a definite effect on some of the shots—the two golfers gave a good account of themselves over a course in wonderful condition and staged one highly tense match. Mrs. Saunders earned a one-up margin by the ninth and she maintained this until the end, to win out.

Meet Postponed

The city swimming championships, originally scheduled for Friday night at the South Side pool, were postponed and will be held next Wednesday.

ALWAYS A THREAT

At one time during the game the new champ was three-up on her opponent but Mrs. Skinner fought back gamely to cut the difference and was always a threat.

Two down starting the 17th, Mrs. Skinner posted a nice par five on the second last hole, while the titlist was taking a six to cut the margin by one and force the match the full 18. Mrs. Saunders then won the 18th and the honors.

Mrs. Saunders out: 575 664 555-49
Mrs. Skinner out: 765 764 565-51
Mrs. Saunders in: 737 555 566-49 48-96
Mrs. Skinner in: 856 453 657-51 51-102

Two American golfers now in the city did very well in the tourney. Mrs. G. Archibald, who comes from the United States and is doing the major part of her golfing this year at Highlands, won the bronze championship by defeating Miss M. Templeman of Municipal on the 14th.

Other U.S. shotmaker, Mrs. D. Graves won the silver consolation by turning back Mrs. F. Wolfe in the final, also on the 14th. The other event, the bronze consolation was captured by Mrs. R. Ferguson who won from Mrs. F. Fricker on the 17th.

HOLD MEETING

Following the completion of all the events, a meeting and presentation of prizes took place in the Prince Rupert Clubhouse. It was decided at the meeting of the Edmonton Ladies' Golf Association to retain the same committee until the meeting in the spring when arrangements for next year's tournament will be made. The prizes were handed out by Mrs. R. Oak.

Those now on the association's executive are: Mrs. Douglas Harper, president; Mrs. W. A. Halliday, vice-president; Mrs. D. M. Gee, secretary. Club representatives are: Mrs. H. L. Jordan, Mayfair; Mrs. R. V. McCosum, Country Club; Mrs. J. Watson, Highlands; Mrs. J. S. Matthews, Municipal and Miss M. Templeman, Prince Rupert.

Five In Row For Sawyer

Signals Shade Dodgers 4-3 To Improve Playoff Chances

BOB SAWYER marked up his fifth straight victory as U.S. Signals edged out Dodgers 4-3 at Renfrew Park on Friday and thereby greatly improve their chances of grabbing the third berth in the coming playoffs for the Senior Baseball League.

Signallers are now a full game ahead of Arrows and each club has two remaining. Both of the Arrows fixtures are against the Yanks, while Signals are scheduled to play Dodgers on Sunday afternoon and Yanks next Wednesday.

Sawyer and Harry Baldwin, who worked for Dodgers, both gave up seven hits last night, but each allowed only two earned runs. Signallers, however, counted twice on errors in the fourth, after their opponents had picked up one unearned marker in the top half of the same inning, and these supplied the winning margin.

Signals came close to scoring in the second session with two down. Danny Hackler leaped one into left field and the ball bounded over Brockie's head and travelled right to the fence. The Dodger left fielder, however, made a quick recovery and threw to Morgan whose throw to Robinson was just in time to nail Hackler sliding to the plate. Dodgers threatened in the third inning. After Robinson had fielded out, Baldwin singled into centre and took second on Superstein's hit to left. Both runners advanced as Brockie grounded out to first, but Green lifted one to Wasik in left field for the third out.

Signallers counted once in their half. Araps popped to Baldwin, but Ed Schisser doubled and then came home when Culver singled sharply to left.

Dodgers moved out in front in the fourth. Morgan lined out to Wasik, but Mel Ottem slashed the ball into right for a single and went to third on Doug Stevenson's drive also into right. Ottem scored when Sawyer uncorked a wild pitch.

Williams went out Culter to Hackler, but Dombrowski juggled Robinson's ground ball, Stevenson crossed the plate. Robinson was forced at second by Baldwin.

Sawyer started off the fourth by slapping a hard one against the right field fence, but Green played the rebound nicely and held Sawyer at first. Nelson went out Williams to Ottem, but Sawyer reached second. Williams made a neat play on Kelly's grounder and threw him out at first. Heckler then drew a walk and when Araps singled to left, Sawyer scored.

On the same play, the throw-in from Brockie was allowed to go past third, permitting Hackler to score, and then Robinson who retrieved the ball, threw badly to Baldwin covering the plate and Araps got home.

Dodgers picked up their third run in the eighth. Brockie opened with a single to right and after Green flied out to Wasik, Morgan pumped a single into right field sending Brockie to third. Brockie

Newhouser Becomes First
20-Game Winner in Majors

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—After being shut out 3-0, by Lefty Hal Newhouser as he became the major's first 20-game winner, Boston Red Sox Friday regained their second-place berth in the American League by defeating Detroit Tigers, 7-4, with a late second-game surge.

Newhouser gave the Sox seven hits, one less than the Tigers made against Emmett O'Neill, but the visitors put the game on ice in the first inning when Doc Cramer and Rudy York doubled and Jimmy Outlaw tripled.

The Tigers, after beating starter Clem Hausmann out of action after the fourth inning, of the second had a 4-2 lead until the sockers got the range on Johnny Gorsica in the seventh.

Four singles and a wild pitch enabled the Red Sox to score three runs in the lucky frame and they added two more tallies in the eighth.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Carve the name of Alex Santilli high on the plaque of all American fighting heroes that sports have contributed to the war. He died while displaying the ultimate in team spirit.

Lieutenant Santilli of the Marines, former Fordham football tackle, was killed by a Japanese sniper while leading a charge in the bloody fighting at Saipan on July 8. He wasn't scheduled for action that day. He had been "benched" by shell shock.

But big Alex, star of Fordham's 1942 Sugar Bowl victory over Missouri, couldn't sit on the bench while his mates were battling down the Saipan field in rough going. The spirit impelled him to join the fray, and the rugged body he had developed on the gridiron permitted him to carry on heroically, despite his shell shock.

A letter from Saipan explains this. It was written by Ensign Gerald J. O'Brien, who was graduated from Fordham in 1943. It was received by the Rev. Ignatius W. Cox, S.J., professor of philosophy and religion at Fordham.

An excerpt follows:
"A few days before the rough going was over, Al, who had charge of a machine gun unit, was shot and killed. He was a very brave and one of his fellow officers carried him back behind the line, a distance of about two miles. Well, they treated Al back there and the next day they had planned to evacuate him (the Medics).

"The next morning Al got up, dressed and sneaked back to his outfit. He told them he wouldn't let them go through all that fighting while he was taking it easy behind the lines. The officer who had carried Al back was injured that day. Al took charge of his own outfit and also the injured officer's rifle platoon.

"Well, he led those men so gallantly that they found themselves treading where fools would normally fear to go. He accounted for many Japs and it was while leading his men in a charge that Al was shot. He was shot by a Jap who was hiding in a cavity in a coral sector of ground over which Al was charging. Al had blocked his last kick.

"WAS LOVED BY ALL"
"The men told me afterward that they saw many friends killed, but they somehow could take it in stride; but when Al got his they were brought to tears. It seems that Al was known and loved by all, even by men who were not in his platoon. They called him "The Saint."

Ensign O'Brien's metaphor about Santilli blocking his last kick doubtless originated in recollection of his friend's biggest day in athletics. That was on Jan. 1, 1942, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans when right tackle Santilli blocked a punt that was converted into an automatic safety—the play that gave Fordham its 2-0 triumph over Missouri.

That game was played less than a month after Pearl Harbor, but Santilli already was figuring on joining the marines, which he did immediately after graduation that summer.

A big inter-service track and field meet involving teams from many outside points is being held at Clarke Stadium this afternoon commencing at 2 o'clock. This promises to be one of the biggest meets every held in Edmonton.

Rich Saratoga
Set For Today
Belmont Park

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Devil Diver and First Fiddle, outstanding nominees for the turf's 1944 handicap championship, meet for the first time this year today in the $50,000 added Saratoga handicap at Belmont park.

Eight other stars of the division have been named for the race but the pre-race odds say it'll be either the Devil from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable or the Fiddle, owned by Mrs. Ed. Mulrenan, at the end of the mile and one-quarter test. The betting Friday was 7 to 5 on Devil Diver and 2 to 1 on First Fiddle.

Devil Diver, who'll carry top weight of 135 pounds, has not been beaten in five starts this season. He won four straight early in the summer, retired to recover from a leg injury and then returned to take the Whitney Stakes last Tuesday. While the Greentree ace was on the sidelines, First Fiddle piled up a string of eight stake triumphs, including the Massachusetts and Butler Handicaps. He'll pick up 128 pounds.

There's little to choose between the riders of the two five-year-olds. Eddie Arcaro will be astride Devil Diver and Johnny Longden, native of Calgary, Alta., will be up on First Fiddle.

If they get any serious opposition, it is expected to come from

Says Elections Show Socialism Is Not Wanted

The people of Canada, in elections in Quebec and Alberta, have rejected the socialistic way of life and have demonstrated their willingness to give a revitalized democracy its opportunity.

P. D. McArthur, Howick, Que., told members of the Edmonton Progressive Conservative Association organizations at a luncheon meeting held Friday at noon at the Macdonald hotel.

Attending the meeting also were a number of leading agriculturalists from the district. S. Bruce Smith, K.C., president of the central executive of the Progressive Conservative party was chairman.

MOMENTOUS ELECTION
Mr. McArthur said the Dominion was facing the most momentous election in its history in which the issue was the adoption of a system of socialistic government or the continuance of the present democratic system.

He said election decisions in Alberta and Quebec indicated the people would not adopt the socialistic system, and added that the Progressive Conservative party must capitalize on its platform of "opportunity for all and special privileges for none which was adopted at the Winnipeg convention, and which will be implemented by John Bracken, the party's leader."

He said that during his tour of Canada he had been greatly encouraged with the progress is making in the Maritimes, and in Ontario. There was also a strengthening of support in the west, he said.

LEADER FOR FARMERS
In John Bracken the farmers of Canada have a leader who will bring a thorough knowledge of their problems to bear on legislation and policies to place agriculture on an equal footing with other industries.

He said that democracy has been an abstract rather than a vital issue in the lives of the people. The revitalizing of democracy to restore its proper function must be the work of all, he stated, and it must be especially the work of the youth of the nation.

Through the experience of the war a bureaucratic form of government has been established in Canada, and there are signs that this will continue in the post-war period.

If this type of government is permitted to continue in the post-war period, and there are signs that the bureaucrats will endeavor to hang on to their power, the result will be the establishment of an autocratic government that will eventually end in revolution, Mr. McArthur stated.

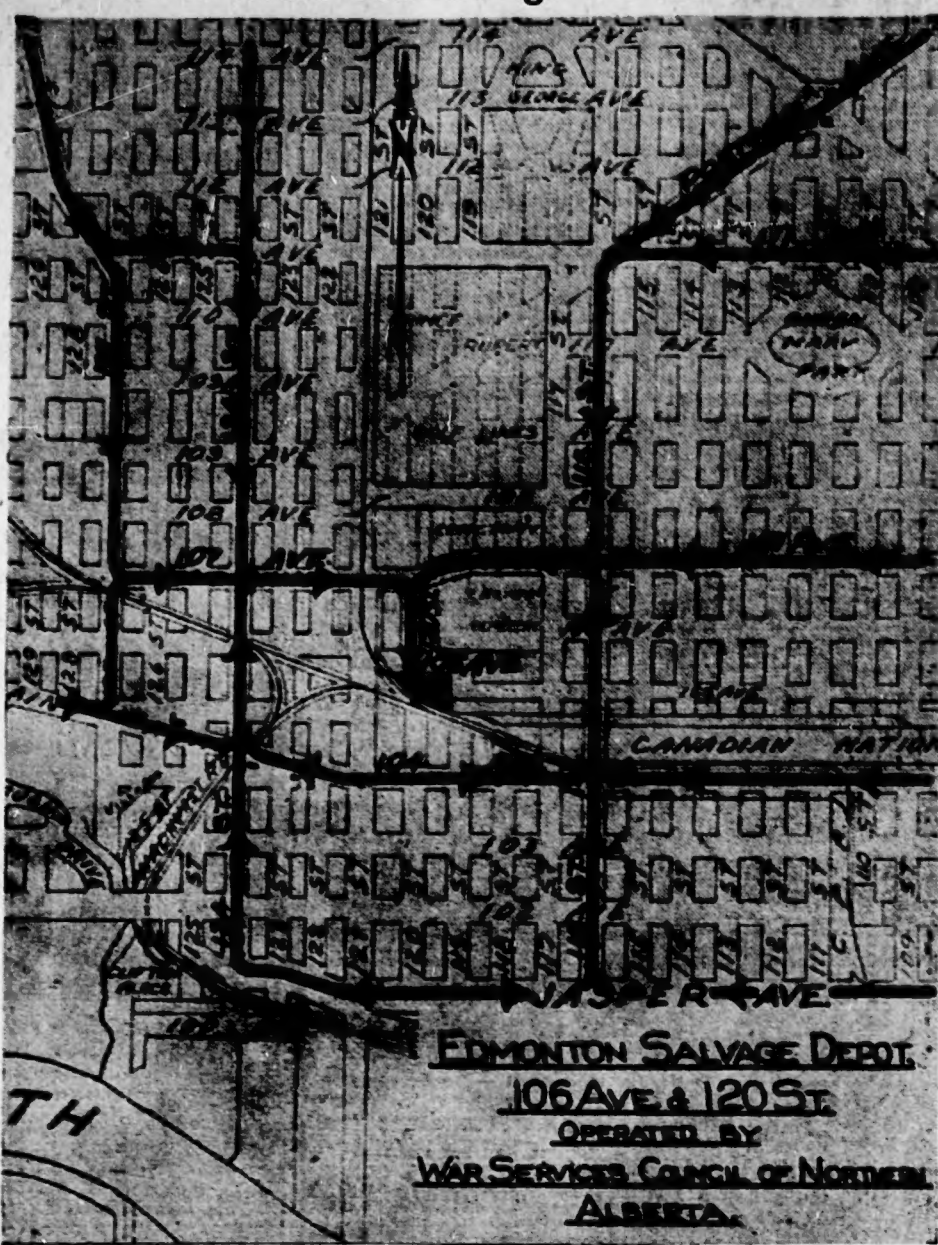

Commenting on the Quebec election, Mr. McArthur said the election of that province had rejected decisively the isolationist policy of the Bloc Populaire party.

Here Is Where Your Salvage Will Be Welcomed

Flattop Is Tops In Characters Of Comic Strip

Most lovable character ever to appear in Chester Gould's Dick Tracy comic strip, and incidentally the longest living one, was Flattop, according to an article appearing in the current issue of Life magazine.

Flattop lasted 21 weeks in comparison to the usual 10 weeks of Tracy strip characters. When Flattop was laid to rest, author-cartoonist Gould received many telegrams from people all over the country who offered to claim the body. One such telegram said: "Please express Flattop's body collect to me as best friend." A friend on the west coast asked the question, "Why did he have to die?" and added with confidence, sing song and midnight lunch for Saturday night. The party will return Sunday morning. More than 20 members are expected to make the trip.

tain sadness, "All America loved Flattop." The magazine article states that Dick Tracy is bought every day by 13,500,000 people and is probably read by twice that number. A better seller, it goes on to say, than any popular book.

EXTENSIVE PRAISE
The article takes in several pages of the magazine and pictures Dick Tracy being confronted by the greatest array of famous villains ever portrayed in pen and ink. Such original characters as The Brown, The Mole, Pruneface, Flattop, Mrs. Pruneface, Littleface, Mama and the Midget, B-B Eyes, Faceless Redrum and 88 Keys put Tracy to his greatest test of stamina. In the background, Gould speaks out: "Just wanted to see if you could handle them ALL at once."

STARTS FROM SCRATCH
Chester Gould, it states, started from scratch and takes little credit for his work. He claims he is just a "big fat slob" compared to Dick Tracy himself has suffered 27 injuries during his career.

The Dick Tracy strip, a favorite with young and old, appears every day in The Edmonton Bulletin.

Salvage Depot Will Welcome Contributions

The Salvage Section of the War Services Council of Northern Alberta is seeking help in gathering materials.

Waste paper is the most urgent need, but rags, bottles and fat are still in demand. Householders are urged to continue to place their salvage near their front doors—visible from the street—on the days set aside for pick-up in their particular district. In case of heavy or steady rain they are urged not to put out or leave out salvage; wet paper is of no value, an official pointed out.

Waste paper is needed to make bomb casings, cartridge wads, shell tubes, depth charge casings, ammunition cartons and—especially—containers for blood plasma.

There are paper mills idle for the want of waste paper, the official stated.

A special appeal was made to hotels and restaurants for broken glass or bottles, and to manufacturers who have any of this material not required for their own needs, to notify the Salvage Depot, phone 51261, or, better still, deliver it by their own trucks or cars.

A million pounds of salvage have been handled in Edmonton in the last four months. It is possible to double this amount before the end of the year if the citizens will continue to save every scrap of paper, rags, bottles, fat, iron, steel and metals and send it to the salvage depot where the public is assured of a courteous reception. Every possible effort will be made to meet the requirements of the householders and business firms in this work of salvage, the official stated.

Berlin Tale
LONDON, Aug. 19—(CP)—The Berlin radio told this tale today: "A new and larger type flying bomb carrying a pilot hit London Friday. The pilot took the bomb over its target and then bailed out at the last minute, just before the crash."

TRAINBUSTER WITH AUSSIES
LONDON—(CP)—Wing Cmdr. Gordon Panitz, DFC, known for his daylight trainbusting exploits, has taken over command of a second RAF Australian Mosquito fighter-bomber squadron.

YELLOW-haired Susie May is sitting in the orchard swing. She has a BLUE ribbon tying her hair, a BLUE bow under her chin to tie her hat, and a BLUE sash, too.

"Swing me up to those RED apples, Teddy," she says to her little BROWN-haired friend. Teddy wears a TAN (use RED and BROWN mixed) sailor suit. The tie and the stripe on his sleeve are RED. The tape on the collar and cuffs is white, so is the shield.

"Take a good hold on the long YELLOW ropes!" cries Teddy. "And sit tight on the BROWN seat—then I will swing you far, far up in the bright BLUE sky. You shall pick apples, and some of the bright GREEN leaves too, for they are hanging down ready to pick!"

The big tree just in front of the pear tree is another apple tree. Its trunk is GRAY (use BLACK lightly) and it has some YELLOW apples on it among its GREEN leaves (paint these leaves a darker green than those on the apple branches). The pear tree has a slim BROWN trunk, and its leaves are a YELLOW-GREEN (mix the colors) and has big YELLOW fruit on it. There is a bright GREEN hedge with BROWN branches beneath, and the grass is a dark GREEN (add PURPLE to darken) by the hedge. The grass seems to get lighter (use less PURPLE) as it reaches the foreground. Big YELLOW-hearted flowers are growing in the grass.

Gracie lies at the foot of a tall white daisy. She wears a little RED cap and dress. Her hair is YELLOW.

Teddy's shoes are TAN, so are Susie May's. Susie May's dress has BLUE dots all over it. Susie May, Teddy and Gracie have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks and RED lips.

The border extending back of the lettering is ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed for ORANGE), and the lettering can be BLUE.

Changes are also made in big game license regulations applying to non-residents. While special licenses for restricted areas of the Clearwater and Brazeau-Athabasca forests has been cut to $25, a trophy tax will be imposed on each animal taken.

Open season on ducks, geese, rails and coots north of the Athabasca river will be from Sept. 4 to Nov. 25, according to the new regulations. Wilson snipe may be hunted throughout the province between Sept. 15 and Nov. 11, and open season on Hungarian partridge is from Oct. 2 to Nov. 25 all through the province.

No shooting of caribou will be allowed in Clearwater forest.

A trophy tax of $25 will be imposed on all big game animals other than deer, for which the tax shall be $15. Antelope are on a special license and are excluded from trophy tax regulations.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER
What is your opinion of a proposal to survey potential power supplies for the development of the Yellowknife mining area?

THE ANSWERS
HARRY THOMPSON, traveller: Such development would be a tremendous asset, not only in the development of the Yellowknife field, but also in the development of Edmonton and the agricultural district surrounding the city. Edmonton would continue to be the outlet for supplies for the north, and development in this area will mean increased demand for consumer goods as well as mining machinery and supplies.

RAYMOND JONES, clerk: The prospective development of the Yellowknife area must be very substantial for any company to undertake power development in that area. It is an excellent sign of coming prosperity from the mineral discoveries reported from this territory.

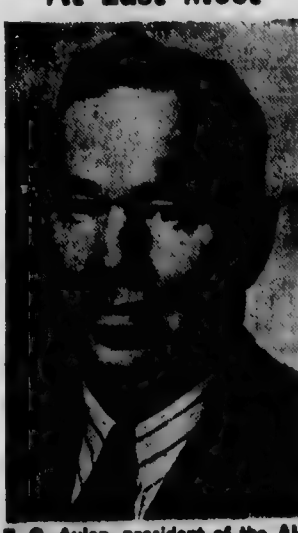

PHILIP WADE, soldier: I am not in the least surprised that such development is to be undertaken. The company must be satisfied the possibilities of the Yellowknife field are substantially proven or a survey party would not be sent into the north.

Fur Breeders Seeking New School Course

At the meeting of the Alberta Provincial Fur Breeders Association held at the Palliser hotel, Calgary on Aug. 16, members decided to request the department of agriculture to include in its curriculum a course in fur animal husbandry at the provincial agricultural school. It was also decided to hold the provincial live fur animal show this year at Calgary and the pet show at Edmonton.

President J. J. Burr opened the session. H. Jenkins, president of the Calgary association welcomed the 20 delegates.

Business included a decision to impress on all Alberta breeders the necessity of sending in their ranch reports and taking out licenses not later than Sept. 15. A. G. Walker was elected to represent Alberta at the Dominion fur council at Ottawa on Sept. 7 and 8.

VOTE 1100

Members voted $100 toward the general expenses of the Dominion fur council. They instructed the Edmonton directors to appoint a committee to confer with and impress upon the government the need of retaining their present nutritional laboratory of the RAP to determine the nutritional value in fur animal foods and to ask for better facilities to hold for observation and treatment as well as for research in diseases of fur animals.

Mr. Keith of the lands and mines department represented the game branch, and reported on his recent trip to Slave Lake district, stressing the need of better laboratory accommodation at Edmonton.

Officials Prepare For Dominion Vote

Instructions have been issued to returning officers in the Edmonton East and West Dominion constituencies in Alberta to proceed at once with organization of the polls in readiness for a Dominion general election, it was learned Saturday.

There appears to be some urgency in this organization as a returning officer in a rural riding has postponed a trip to Eastern Canada which had been planned prior to the receipt of the instructions from the chief electoral officer for the Dominion.

Returning officers in Edmonton East and West ridings have started a survey of their poll boundaries, and also to locate suitable polling stations, it was learned.

Forms for the taking of the enumeration of voters, and other election material has arrived in the city, and it would appear that an early election is contemplated.

The east coast of North America is almost directly north of the west coast of South America.

Six-Year Old Boy Is Hit by Truck

Six-year-old Jacob Agrios, 11729 97 street, was admitted to the Royal Alexandra hospital about 9:10 p.m. Friday, for examination after he had been struck by a truck at 117 avenue and 97 street.

Driver of the truck, Henry Nelson, 9826 102 street, told city police that he had seen two children playing on the street, and that the little boy had suddenly run in front of the truck, the right front fender of which caught and threw the lad away from the wheels.

By the end of June, 1944, Canada had produced $2,000,000,000 worth of war vehicles.

Although most of the time we do not see any further than the horizon, yet there are times, when the atmosphere is just right, that we can and do see much farther. In Tibet, Mount Everest has been reported seen 400 miles away, due to refraction of light waves through the atmosphere on certain days. Travelers often report seeing objects at great distances, and many such mirages are experienced in the deserts and on the ocean. The object is usually inverted when seen in a mirage. Even the rays of the sun are bent so that we actually see the sun before it rises in the morning, and after it sets at night.

McKenney On Bridge

America's Card Authority - It's Capt. Ruth H. Schellenberg now, stationed in Alaska. Mrs. Schellenberg and Harry Fishbein conduct New York's largest bridge club, the Mayfair. Ralph went in as a second lieutenant and has worked up to a captaincy. He wrote that when they get a chance to play a little bridge in Alaska, the cold weather makes their bidding more conservative. He described their bidding of today's hand—

♠ 9	♥ 6	♦ 9	♣ 9
♠ 8	♥ 5	♦ 8	♣ 8

Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, ending in his own hand, then led a low diamond. West won with the ace and shifted to a spade. This was won in dummy with the ace. Now, rather than use a valuable trump, the captain decided to play for the lack of diamonds in dummy. He led the queen of diamonds from dummy. Of course when the jack fell, his diamond suit was established.

THESE WOMEN!

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Youth Too Glorified; Every Age Is Good

Youngsters Seek to Compress Pleasures Within Just a Few, Short Years; Adventure Can Be as Great at 70 as at 17

The juvenile delinquency, most appalling problem in the world today, is due largely to our glorification of youth. The joy of youth has been the theme song which we have played as upon a harp with a thousand strings.

The result has been two-fold. First, to implant in the minds of even babies in the cradle the idea that youth is a divine prerogative which possesses that puts them above the law and that it entitles them to have the best of everything and do whatever they please. And, worse still, it tells them the belief that youth is the only part of life worth having; that all beyond that is cinders, ashes and dust, and so they must compress within a few short years all the pleasure that they ever will have.

RECKLESSNESS

That explains the recklessness of boys and girls, their excesses, their refusal to count the cost of their acts. Their slogan is: Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we will be old. They literally cannot picture a future beyond the live age that is not a martyrdom of boredom, and so they are in a hurry to grab at life before it turns to dead sea fruit on their lips.

It is this fear of the future that is at the bottom of most of the hurry-up marriages that are bound to wreck so many lives. Girls rush to the altar with men whom they scarcely know by sight because they are afraid there will not be enough husbands to go around after the war, and they may not get one. Boys marry strange girls for whom they have no real desire because they believe that love and romance belong exclusively to youth and if they miss them now they will never have them. And you may talk your tongue off to them without convincing them that the grand passion is an emotional experience that belongs to maturity not to adolescence.

WANT A GOOD TIME

And who can doubt that it is this belief that they must have their fun while they are young that fills our jails with criminals who are still in their teens, and that bows so many parents' heads with shame? I get hundreds of letters from boys who write that they are not going to slave and save as their fathers have done. They are going to have a good time while they are young and still can enjoy things.

But good times cost money and their pockets are empty. So they steal automobiles in which to take their girls joy-riding. They become housebreakers and thugs and often murderers to buy fine clothes and go to swell restaurants.

And their sisters, who also believe that they must capitalize their charms and good looks and get the most out of them, while they are young, snap their fingers in Mrs. Grundy's face and boast that they do not care what the old frumps say about them until they find that the doors they would like to enter are shut in their faces.

It is a cruel mistake to teach the young that youth is the happiest time of life. It is only when we have grown old and philosophical and learned to take things that we know real happiness.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Postal Cards are Readily Obtainable

Some one signing "Postcard Jennie," asks whether Burger's disease ends in gangrene, says a friend and she suffers much pain, swelling and numbness in both feet. I ask whether I can explain Burger's disease.

I talked about it here recently and had a series of articles about it here a few months ago. There is a chapter about it in booklet CVD for copy send ten cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Postal cards seldom get to my desk but "Postcard Jennie" got through for one good reason—she refers to a woman with Burger's disease.

Now the medical name for Burger's disease is, I regret to say, thrombo-angiitis obliterans. However, we're not inclined to be unreasonable about such matters in the profession, as witness the recent dropping of one of the 15 from angitis, a concession which, I think, shows that medicine is a liberal art.

In a talk to women about smoking I said here "If a lady cares to chew she is just as well justified in taking a chew as a gentleman is. If a gentleman ever does tobacco does no more harm to a woman than it does to a man. But there is an argument about the injurious effects of tobacco in youth" and youth, as I see it, is the growing developing period of life from the age of 10 years to the age of 25 years. I warned young women smokers to look to their legs. I predicted that, although the great majority of persons with Burger's disease were males who smoked cigarettes excessively, we would probably find a good many women afflicted with thrombo-angiitis obliterans in the next decade or two, now that girls are carrying the thing to such extremes. Mind you, I do not mean to imply that smoking is the only cause of Burger's disease. If there are authentic cases on record of Burger's disease progressing to gangrene and amputation of foot or leg, in persons who have never smoked. But I do believe excessive indulgence, especially in youth, is and careful play made the contract. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, ending in his own hand, then led a low diamond. West won with the ace and shifted to a spade. This was won in dummy with the ace. Now, rather than use a valuable trump, the captain decided to play for the lack of diamonds in dummy. He led the queen of diamonds from dummy. Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

It is difficult to convince some parents that when child conduct annoys or inconveniences them it isn't always necessary to spank the child.

They laud the accomplishments of punishment. One woman told of whaling her children with a fly swatter so severely that she had only to wave it toward them in the future and they came to time. One used a razor strap when the child spilled some crumbs; another kept the child up half the night until in sheer fatigue he confessed that he had taken a dime from her pocketbook. To individuals who gloat over such triumphs, advice seems futile.

But there are as many parents, fortunately for their children, who see the relationship between misbehavior and age. These parents expect, without any drastic punishment and with the good example of the parents and explanation, that children will outgrow such behavior.

They know that at the ages of 2 to 4 children can be expected to be cry-babies over nothing and tend to say, "I won't" at the most ordinary request. Knowing this they soften up on their demands, minimize the opportunities for negativism or tears and know that at 4 he or she will be a sweet child again and ordinarily obedient.

They have come to recognize the child of 4 by his use of profanity and the one of five by his pugnaciousness. He wants to fight every one, old or young.

They discover by their own and their friends' experiences that it is at seven years of age the child is tempted to steal fruit from the grocer or fish pennies from the parents' pocketbooks, if they are so foolish as to leave them around carelessly. This behavior is no special evidence of wickedness. It is typical of growth and the kind of environment to which most children are exposed.

Naturally, the fact it is typical does not relieve the mother of the necessity to do something about it. Obviously she corrects the child repeatedly. She points out why doing certain things makes the child unhappy and unpopular. She keeps this up until her explanations and the child's growth give him a new viewpoint.

Too much attention to misbehavior, in the form of painful punishments, makes the child mean and revengeful, not cooperative, and may set temporary behavior into a permanent pattern. No punishment is not the only answer to good children. There are many, many others.

Our leaflet "Why Do Children Steal?" will help the parent to see the many reasons, including age, why money or possessions are a temptation to children. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Elder, in care of this newspaper.

Red Cross Mobile Blood Clinic Travels 4,271 Miles Since May

By KAY FORD

Travelling 4,271 miles since May 18, 1944, four women who work with the mobile blood clinic of the Canadian Red Cross Society are familiar with the people of the northern section of Alberta.

This week in Holden, Riley and Viking, a clinic was held by Miss Elen T. Huggill, B.Sc., in nursing, teaching and supervision, who has been five years on the staff of Dalhousie Medical School public health clinic. Mrs. H. R. Evans, a graduate of the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, technician, Mrs. K. F. Wood, graduate nurse, and Miss Barbara Barrow, graduate of the Ottawa Civic hospital. They also spent Tuesday and Wednesday at an oil drilling camp near Viking.

The worker's life with the mobile unit is lively. Miss Huggill has a full time job with the Red Cross. The others give of their time voluntarily.

Miss Huggill is responsible for the bottles, supplies and the general expense of the van.

IMPORTANT WORK

The women leave their homes, children and household duties to attend to this vital part of the war effort. The collection of blood in large centres is important, but this branch of the Red Cross makes it possible for the people in outlying districts to send their life blood to the men on active service.

The van is a gift of the Eskimos, Indians and white residents of Akavik district, Northwest territories, to the Canadian Red Cross.

Miss Huggill says the attendance of the doctors at the clinic is invaluable because they know the past, present and probable future of the donors. At Viking Dr. G. C. Haworth and Dr. A. E. Caldwell were in attendance.

117 DONATIONS

When Viking was done this week there were 117 donations.

The procedure is well organized and simple. On arriving on the scene of action a nurse teaches three secretaries, another member of the staff teaches the nurses, and still another shows the canteen workers how to carry on, and the fourth helper shows how the tubes are washed. All this is done prior to the opening of the clinic. At the opening next morning the donor gives his name, age, and information as to the number of donations. Then the histories are taken, which determine any illness and Mrs. Evans does a hemoglobin, a blood test which shows any sign of anemia.

After leaving Mrs. Evans, the donor goes to Mrs. Wood who takes blood pressure. Miss Barrow floats and Miss Huggill does the intravenous work.

Having given a donation, the donor lay on another bed for a rest period of at least five minutes, and then has toast or ham sandwich with tea or coffee.

Members of the local Red Cross, under the direction of the Rev. Father O'Neill, Mrs. J. Hutchinson and Mrs. Edwin Primette, made all arrangements days before the clinic arrived.

GRADUATE NURSES

They supplied the beds and arranged the nurses. These nurses are all graduates, who no longer practise their profession after marriage. They give freely of their time. Father O'Neill is in charge of the donors, informing them of the date and making appointments.

The people who attended this week's clinic came not only from the town but from distances. The workers during this visit encountered people who are haying, mowing, threshing and canning. Miss Huggill was high in her praise of the country donors.

DONOR'S DIET

The donor's diet is strictly watched for eight hours before giving a donation, and he must go without breakfast. The donor is given time juice before donating his blood and a drink of water immediately afterwards.

The commissary, where coffee and toast were served to the donors was under the supervision of the ladies' auxiliaries to the churches in the town.

Donors are through by noon. With the assistance of the staff the cleaning up work is concluded an hour after the clinic ends. The bottles are placed in numerical order in boxes, and taken to the butcher shop to be kept cool under refrigeration until train time. They are shipped to Edmonton, where the plasma is separated, pooled and sent to Toronto. There the plasma is dried, and sent overseas where it is kept until needed.

The clinic is tidied, beds remade, needles sterilized, bottles set out, reports completed and everything set in readiness for the next day's clinic.

Up until the middle of July an average of 220 donations a week were made. The largest number per week was 419 in Camrose. An average of cubic centimetre per day is 18,000, and an average number of donations per day is 70. Donations from four people are needed to make one donation of plasma given on the battlefield.

WORK IS HARD

The nurses' work is hard, exacting and tiring and at the end of the active day, the women take a quiet dinner and retire early. Miss Huggill says each week-end is spent in preparing for the next week.

In Viking the workers were lucky working under excellent conditions. Some places they cannot obtain nurses to assist them, so besides taking histories and temperatures, the others have to help Miss Huggill. Sometimes the clinics are held in community halls, churches, and Masonic temples.

Difficult roads have to be dealt with as do storms, lack of assistance and many other obstacles in their work. But this work is going steadily on, and when they return from a trip the weariness fades away with the thoughts of a good job done well. They are welcomed everywhere, and where assistance can possibly be given, they have all the help possible. No wish of theirs is too much for the country folks to gratify. Hospitality in the country is more than the nurses can ever accept.

Smashed Crack Nazi Division in Italy

Working with a British Division in Italy, Canadian tankmen led the Allied advance through rough country in the Arno river sector in Italy, smashing the crack Hermann Goering Division and sending them reeling back in retreat. These pictures from the battle front show (top left), a youthful Nazi prisoner, guarded by a Canadian soldier, being taken to Battalion Headquarters in a Jeep for questioning. At lower left Canadian tanks following through on the heels of the retreating Germans and right, Trooper Bob Sharpe, of Winnipeg, a Canadian tankman, bathing and doing his "family" wash at the same time, during a brief halt in the Allied drive.

First Photo: "Rocket Coast" Target

The huge concrete dome structure pictured above, topping a German underground installation in the much-bombed Pas de Calais "rocket coast" area of France, is believed to be used by Germans in connection with threatened attack on England by long-range rockets. RAF raids with 6-ton block-busters on July 17 and 20 badly undermined cliff supporting the dome, closed tunnel entrances and disrupted rail lines. Photo above was taken before these raids, but shows damage from previous ones.

mop up the town. The tanks already had blasted the town but the "PBI" had to clear the enemy from buildings."

Here Is Favorite Bomb of Air Crews

Favorite among air crews is the 4,000-pound General Purpose bomb. Sgt. Ldr. Tuller, centre, instructs Cpl. W. N. Jolley, Ft.-Sergt. O. A. Holmes, Sgt. C. H. Pickard and Ft.-Sergt. W. E. Slater how to handle these "two-tonners" at Mountain View, Ont., RCAF Bombing and Gunnery school.

Stars in Movies

Pte. June Emery, originally from Toronto, is one of three members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps soon to appear in the movie entitled "Air Crew," produced at the Pinewood Studios, near London, Eng. Starring Edward G. Robinson, the picture centres around RAF cadets training in Canada and U.S.

RCAF Develops New Oxygen Valve

—R.C.A.F. Photo.
After nearly three years of research, technicians of the Royal Canadian Air Force have developed a valve which supplies oxygen for high altitude combat, according to an airman's requirements. The higher the airman flies, the more oxygen he needs, but so does the demand for terrific speed, gaining and losing thousands of feet in a matter of seconds, a pilot has no time to fiddle with control dials. The new RCAF valve is automatically controlled by the flier's breathing while a metal bellows which expands and contracts according to altitude, regulates the mixture of air and oxygen fed to his lungs. The demand valve, to which the arrow points in the above photograph, weighs 18 ounces, just half the size and weight of inferior types used by the German Luftwaffe.

Another Italian Town Falls

The Italian town of Montespertoli, overlooking the valley of the Arno to the west of Florence, fell to Canadian tankmen and British infantry after fierce fighting. Here both tanks and infantry move forward through the town in pursuit of the retreating Hunns.

Canadians Blast Enemy U-Boat

These smiling members of a crack RCAF squadron stationed in Iceland, sighted and attacked a German U-boat after a gun duel in which they pitted a pair of light calibre machine guns against the enemy's cannon... and won. The Canadian lads were engaged in a routine flight, gathering "gen" on the weather when they spotted the German submarine. After a perfect straddle of depth charges had been dropped, only wreckage and acres of oil marked the place where the sub had been. From left to right they are: Flight Sergeant Earl Tilander, Wireless-Air-Gunner, 18 Rhyl Ave., Toronto; Flying Officer Bert Hunter, co-pilot, Langley, B.C.; Flying Officer Tommy Cooke, DFC, pilot, Clinton, Ont.; and Dauphin, Man.; Warrant Officer G. McMacken, who manned the aircraft's machine guns, 250 Furby St., Winnipeg; Flight Lieutenant Eric Wisken, navigator, Island Falls, Ont.; and Flying Officer Peter Fickel, Wireless Air Gunner, Fort William.

BUILDING — REMODELING

Destroy Nests to Discourage Ants

Ants usually do not attack plants, their chief damage being confined to undermining vegetables with their channels and causing the roots to dry out. Occasionally they do feed on the succulent stems and other parts of young transplants and seedlings. When this is observed the gardener had better be on the watch for aphids or plant lice.

Control measures consist of discouraging the ants by destroying their nests with the hoe or cultivator and the use of some chemical material. Some of the ready-prepared baits in the form sold by dealers are satisfactory. Follow the directions given on the container.

Small nests in the lawn or garden may be eliminated by injecting carbon disulphide into them with the spout of an oil can. Usually one or two squirts from such a can will be an effective dosage. Close the entrance, immediately after the liquid has been injected, to prevent loss of the poisonous vapors. For the large nests or mounds it will be necessary to make holes about a foot apart and several inches deep with a stick the diameter of a broom handle, and pour into each two to three tablespoonfuls of carbon disulphide. Then close the holes at the surface by pushing the soil together.

Still another material that is effective for eliminating such nests is calcium cyanide which is sold by dealers under the trade name of "cyanogas". Follow directions given on the container.

Since ants are widely distributed and more abundant in some areas than in others, it may be necessary to apply control measures several times during the growing season. Ants may be temporarily eliminated from the garden but after the baits or chemicals used have been washed away by rains, or mixed with soil by cultivation, may migrate back from surrounding untreated areas and reinfest your garden. Be on the alert for such activity and apply control measures in time to avoid damage.

Nicotine Sulfate Spray Kills Plant and Vegetable Aphids

The little pinkish or greenish aphids seen on most garden plants and vegetables are garden enemy No. 1. They attack in overwhelming numbers and do considerable damage in a short time. They drain the life from the plant by inserting long bills into stems, buds and foliage and sucking out the sap. They often inoculate plants with poisons from their saliva and introduce diseases such as mosaics and blights.

A single aphid can in two weeks become the center of a colony of 50 to 100 others. This phenomena occurs in spring after the first generation hatches from the overwintering eggs. When aphids are found do not wait until they increase—spray at once.

Aphids are not hard to kill if sprayed with nicotine sulfate Black Leaf 40. The recommended measure for the home gardener is 1½ teaspoonful to a gallon of soapy water. Rotenone, pyrethrum or other contact sprays do not seem to be effective. A second and third spraying may be necessary if the infestation is heavy. The main thing is to spray the minute these tiny insects are found.

Cleaning up the garden in autumn is most important in the fight against the aphids. It is then that the egg-laying winged females are born. These and the eggs must be destroyed. The eggs are laid on trash of one kind or another about the yard and everything is cleaned up and destroyed. The aphid eggs are too. And in the cleaning, many other kinds of insect pests are also destroyed in the process.

Aphids may be found on apples, beans, peaches, cabbage, melons, eggplant, peas, potatoes, tomatoes, roses, spinach, turnips, chrysanthemums and cucumbers. Ordinarily nicotine sulfate may be used without injury to plants, but caution is needed on a very hot day in the garden. Be sure to spray the underside of the leaves where the aphids live in greatest numbers.

Quebec Council Protests Article In U.S. Magazine

QUEBEC, Aug. 19.—C.P.—The Quebec city council last night passed a resolution protesting against an article in Collier's Magazine of Aug. 18 entitled "Canada's Cross." In the article, Frank Gervasi said that French and English-speaking Canadians "From birth control to the war effort are as far away from one another as Hitler is from democracy." The resolution said the "libelous article . . . is detrimental to the war effort and to the voluntary enlistment within the Dominion of Canada and more especially in the province and city of Quebec." The preamble to the resolution said the article is contrary to the facts and the information supplied by "Malevolent and anonymous persons about the character and courage of the French-Canadians is quite erroneous."

Detailed Care Is Necessary For Best Roses

By WALTER P. WILSON

No plant rewards the grower with as much pleasure and satisfaction for so little trouble as the rose. It appeals to all and sundry and gives up its beauty in the humblest surroundings.

Many gardens in Edmonton are profuse with fine blooms at the present time, for it is true that properly cultured bushes continue to provide good blooms all through the summer months, right up to the freeze-up. It is a good idea to cut a few blooms well before they are ready to open up, place them in a bowl of cold water and in a few days you will have a fine display, which will keep beautiful and fresh for a week or ten days, sometimes longer.

KEEP SOIL LOOSE

To keep bushes providing you with lots of roses it is necessary to keep the soil loose in your rose beds by hoeing the top surface of the soil to about two inches deep. This should be done after a rain-fall, or after watering, but it is not necessary to water them too often, but when you do be sure and give the ground a thorough soaking, especially around the root of the bush. A mere sprinkling of water on the surface does more harm than good and this applies to bedding plants of all kinds.

It takes only a few minutes to loosen up the soil even in a large bed of roses, but it provides an abundance of air so necessary, and at the same time helps to hold the moisture in the ground, which is so necessary for healthy growth, ripening the wood, and preparing them to withstand our cold winters.

When cutting blooms it is wise to cut them with long stems. They should be cut to within two or three buds, or leaves on the stem from which it is growing. In this way it leaves less buds for that particular stem to develop before producing another bloom—in other words by cutting your blooms to within four or five inches of the bottom of the stem you will secure another crop of good blooms earlier. In addition to this it helps the plant to retain the sap in the lower extremities, which again helps to preserve the bushes through the winter months.

Later on in these columns we will give instructions as to the best way to protect your plants through the winter, and ensure your having strong, healthy, rose bushes next spring.

Short Supply Effects Few Heating Items

If you can't get the exact item you want for your heating system or if the particular type of unit you want is temporarily unavailable, don't believe that all heating systems are unavailable for the duration.

Certain items required in the plumbing and heating fields are bound, during wartime, to be occasionally in short supply. Sheet metal may be needed for airplane or invasion barges. Heavier metals may be needed for tanks or guns or vehicles. Labor, for a period, may be diverted to direct war industries. But, thanks to the successful efforts of private production and government control such shortages are almost always temporary and in some cases merely local in effect.

So if you can't get the heating unit or item you want today, look around for something that will do just as well. Your heating contractor will gladly help. He knows all the angles and is in a position to tell you whether it is best to wait or to "do it another way."
